Knox Holds Realism Is Way to Win

Hopes U. S. Will Not Be Dragged Into War, but Says It Is Better Than Nazi Peace

Doubts Survival

U. S. Way of Life Could Not Endure German Rule

Washington, July 14 (AP).—Secretary Knox, rounding out a year as civilian head of the navy, expressed hope today that the policy of aid to Britain would not lead this country into war, but he added that war would be "infinitely preferable" to a peace "accomplished by a surrender to Hitlerism."

As the cabinet's most outspoken champion of all-out assistance to the British, Knox said in an anniversary interview that "I have been realistic enough to pursue that policy wherever the pursuit of such a policy might lead."

"I hope it will not lead us into war," he continued. "But in my eyes a war of defense againstNazism would be infinitely preferable to a peace accomplished by a surrender to Hitlerism and all that would mean to the freedom and independence of the American people."

The Chicago publisher, one of the two Republican members of President Roosevelt's cabinet, chose his words carefully in response to a remark that some persons had come to regard him as leader of a "war party."

"No sane man wants war," he said. "I happen to belong to a school of thinkers who regard as imperative a policy of aiding England at whatever cost to ourselves, to promote both our present security and future national welfare."

He added that he did not believe "a free, independent, democratic United States of America could long survive in a Nazi-dominated world."

"If it did survive," he continued, "it would only be at the price of either continuous war or continuous readiness for war, which would divert all our energies to the achievement of adequate national defense.

"Any man who deliberately sought to involve his country in war for the mere purpose of precipitating armed conflict would have to be crazy or malevolent to such a degree as to deserve incarceration."

Just a year ago the senate after sharp debate confirmed the nominations of Frank Knox to be navy secretary and Henry L. Stimson to be secretary of war. Knox, the bluff, ruddy 1936 Republican nominee for vice-president, met with stronger opposition than Stimson, who had been President Hoover's secreary of state and President Taft's secretary of war.

As head of the navy in a year of most intense preparations for instant readiness the sea forces have known in peacetime, Knox at 67 retains much of the vigor of his Spanish-American war "rough rider" days.

Knox said he felt "a great sense of gratification over the progress made in upbuilding the navy in the past year" and he ascribed an overwhelming proportion of the results to his professional co-workers in the navy.

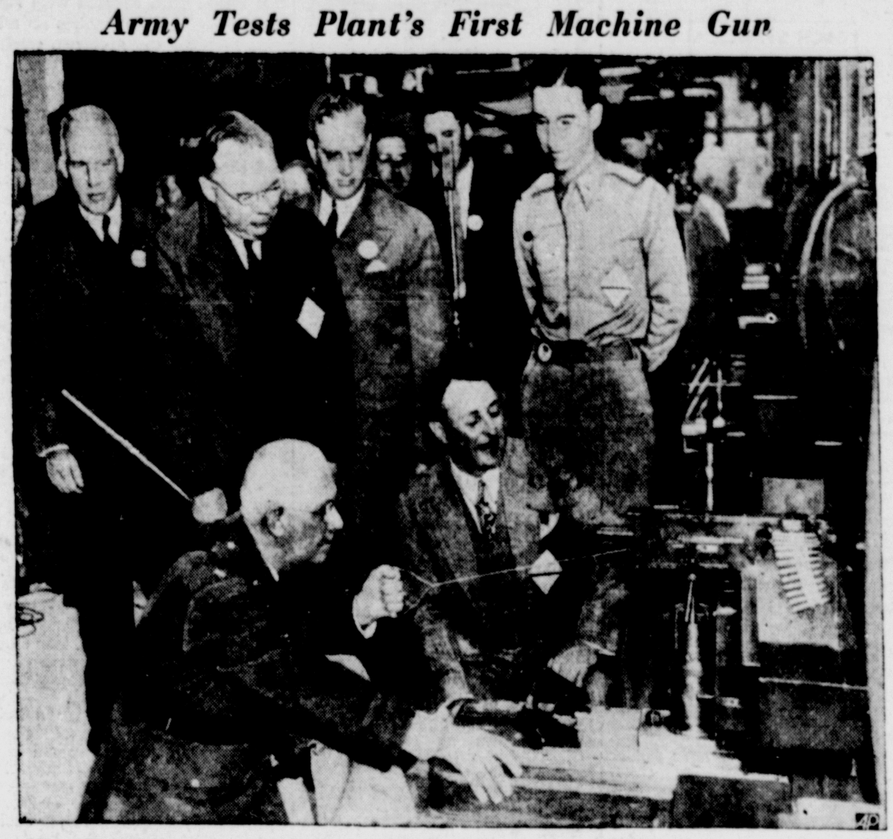
Body Is Found

Yonkers Boy's Body Is Recovered From River by Central Tug

New York, July 14 (AP).—The body of Harold Higgins, 17-year-old son of Police Lieutenant Patrick Higgins, of Yonkers, was recovered from the Hudson river off 64th street yesterday morning by the crew of a New York Central railroad company tug. The boy, who lived with his parents at 149 Vess avenue, Yonkers, was drowned several days ago when he fell out of a rowboat in the Hudson river at Yonkers.

Clad in bathing trunks, the body was observed by Captain Arthur Pierson of the tug, who dispatched a rowboat to pick it up and put it ashore at the foot of 64th street. The body later was taken to the Bellevue morgue, where identification was made by the youth's cousin, James Mcguire, also of the Yonkers address.

Army Tests Plant's First Machine Gun



Major Ronald Hands kneels as he fires the first machine gun produced by the new Buffalo Arms plant in Cheektowaga, N. Y., after its delivery to the army. Watching him are Lieut. Governor Charles Poletti (kneeling right) of New York, and company and army officials.

Fred Fisher Dies In Detroit; Was Eldest of Family

Co-Founder of Body Corp. Was Victim of Heart Ailment; Fortune $50,000,000

Detroit, July 14 (AP)—Fred Fisher, eldest of the seven famous Fisher brothers and co-founder of the Fisher Body Corporation which figured prominently in the growth of the automobile industry, died today in Henry Ford Hospital. He was 63 years old.

Suffering from a heart ailment, Fisher had been in the hospital several weeks. His condition became critical last Friday.

At his bedside when death came at 4:10 a. m. were his wife, all his brothers, and a number of executives of his company. A group of them had kept a vigil over the week-end.

Fred, eldest of the Fisher brothers who gained international fame with the upsurge of the "horseless carriage," began his career in his father's blacksmith shop in Norwalk, O.

He and his brother Charles led the way to automotive empire after their father, Lawrence Fisher had expanded his business into a carriage shop.

The "horseless carriage" began to be a main subject of talk in such carriage shops, and it was then that Fred and Charles Fisher formed the Fisher Body Co., in Detroit.

The company was capitalized at $50,000. By 1912 it was turning out 105,000 bodies a year. One day in 1928, the company, then controlled by General Motors Corp., turned out 7,280 bodies.

Fred Fisher was born in Sandusky, O., in 1878.

Once, he was credited with having told a friend when he was a young man in Norwalk: "I'm going to have $50,000 when I'm 50 years old, and I'm going to retire."

His fortune, when he was 50, was estimated at $50,000,000. He was still at work.

Philanthropies of Fisher and his wife, Burtha, were believed to have run into the millions.

In 1929 Fisher was decorated by the Pope with the order of Malta.

Sees Quick End of War

London, July 14 (AP)—Field Marshal Baron Ironside, member of the British army council, predicted today "the war will finish a good deal more quickly than many of us imagine." Lord Ironside told a war weapons week audience at Cromer: "Thank God America is behind us. After Dunkerque I sent a call to America for equipment and I immediately received 900,000 Springfield rifles and over 160,000,000 rounds of ammunition. "That was what defended England at that moment."

Submit Resignations

Stockholm, Sweden, July 14 (AP)—Reports from Oslo said today that all but three of Norway's 18 provincial governors had submitted their resignations to German Commissioner Joseph Terboven. They were said to have declared they could not tolerate control of civil service by Major Vidkun Quisling, Norwegian Nazi leader.

Will Not Use Gas

Berlin, July 14 (AP).—A charge attributed to Moscow that the Germans are about to use gas brought a sharp retort today from Dienst Aus Deutschland, news commentary with close official connections. "Repeatedly it has been stressed by the German military leadership it will use no poison gas as long as its enemies refrain from using it," it said. "That statement goes for this campaign."

France Holds Sad Bastille Anniversary

Vichy, Unoccupied France, July 14 (AP)—France spent this July 14th in "mourning and meditation" far different from the celebrations which made "Bastille Day" the republic's gayest celebration.

In occupied zones, Germans forbade even the flying of flags and in the unoccupied zones parades and demonstrations were forbidden and few flags flew.

Chief of State Marshal Petain attended a brief wreath-laying ceremony before a monument to soldier dead of the last, not the present, war.

Bradford Chosen To Head Legion

Ellenville Resident Heads Ulster Legion; Alien Law Is Favored

Chester Bradford of Ellenville was elected commander at the annual meeting and picnic of the Ulster County American Legion held on Sunday afternoon on the grounds of the New Paltz Rod & Gun Club.

Michael Vanicky of Saugerties was elected vice commander; John Ludlow of Ellenville, adjutant, and Nelson W. Snyder of this city, was re-elected treasurer.

A resolution drafted by a committee appointed at the May meeting and composed of Charles Parker, Henry Winkelmann and Nelson W. Snyder, was introduced and adopted. In effect it asked that the section in the alien and citizenship law that had been deleted and revoked in 1929, which required the publishing the list of persons applying for citizenship papers, be restored to the law on the ground that there was no other means of obtaining that information before the day of holding naturalization court. The resolution was adopted.

The annual meeting and picnic was largely attended by members of the American Legion and their families from all sections of Ulster county.

Lifts 1,000 Pounds, Dies

New York, July 14 (AP)—Warren Lincoln Travis, 66, Coney Island strong man, lifted a 1,000-pound cannon ball yesterday as part of his sideshow routine and then collapsed and died. Physical instructor in the police department when Theodore Roosevelt was commissioner, the teetotaling, non-smoking performer won strongman competitions in the United States and Canada and had performed in several circuses. He used to lift a platform bearing an upright piano and two horses.

300 Nuns Interned

Vichy, unoccupied France, July 14 (AP)—Approximately 300 British and Canadian nuns from French convents have been interned as enemy aliens by German occupation authorities, according to reports published here.

399 Killed During June

London, July 14 (AP).—The Ministry of Home Security announced today that only 399 persons were killed in air raids on Britain in June, the lowest of any month since July, 1940.

Pickles Jailed

Leo Pickles, 427 Third avenue, New York city, was given five days in the county jail by Justice of the Peace P. A. Lyon of Milton Saturday when arraigned by Trooper William Martin on a public intoxication charge.

Woman Is Fatally Injured in Crash At Poughkeepsie

Mrs. Pezza Was in Auto Headed to Visit Son Who Was Staying at West Hurley

Mrs. Bierina Pezza, 35, of 1222 Commonwealth avenue, Bronx, was fatally injured Saturday afternoon when a car driven by her husband, Lazzaro Pezza, 46, skidded on a wet pavement on South avenue, Poughkeepsie, near the entrance to the Poughkeepsie Rural Cemetery. Mrs. Pezza was thrown from the car and almost instantly killed when the car skidded into a second car operated by Miss Louise Powell of Poughkeepsie.

At the time of the crash Mr. and Mrs. Pezza were enroute to West Hurley to meet their nine-year-old son who was vacationing there.

At the time of the crash it was raining hard. The car after striking the Powell car crashed into a fence. Pezza was taken to Vassar Hospital with head injuries, a fractured shoulder, injuries about the nose and suffering from shock.

In the Powell car was the driver, her mother, Mrs. Louise Powell, 50, and her mother, Mrs. Louise Hale, 75. All were taken to Vassar Hospital but were not considered badly injured.

The accident happened after the Pezza car had rounded a turn and then skidded on the wet pavement. It struck the Powell car and then went across the pavement to strike the cemetery fence and bound back against the Powell car. Pezza will be questioned as soon as his condition permits but an investigation by Assistant District Attorney E. L. Gellert brought forth the statement that there was no evidence of criminal negligence.

Japanese Part Closed

Shanghi, July 14 (AP).—The Japanese port of Kobe has been closed to foreigners for a 10-day period starting tomorrow, it was reported here today amid an apparently Japanese-sponsored propaganda campaign to create the impression that a Japanese attack against Russian Siberia is imminent. Most foreign military quarters were inclined to a belief that the Japanese were indulging in a war of nerves so far as Russia was concerned and said they still were convinced that the next Japanese press tirade.

Red Armies Falling Apart and Kiev, Gateway to Ukraine, Tottering, According to Nazis

Consuls Miss Boat Purposely Then Attempt to Catch It at Sea

R. A. F.'s Activity Over Germany Is Amazing Outbreak

British Aerial Strength Is Considerably Greater Due Partly to Help From America

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

The measure of Britain's effort to relieve the pressure of the Nazi attack on Russia, and to take advantage of the temporary lull on the western front, is indicated by British Premier Churchill's statement this morning that the Royal Air Force is now pouring bombs into the enemy at a heavier rate than the Hitlerites have, in any monthly period, bombed the British Isles.

That is an amazing development, showing the growth of the British air force through the intensification of home production and the all-out aid of the United States. When you consider the hell which the Nazis hurled down upon the half defenseless Britain during long months of horror, you get an idea of the way John Bull's aerial strength has grown.

This announcement is calculated to give vast encouragement to the allies. The great numerical superiority of the German air force has been one of Britain's greatest handicaps.

Meanwhile conflicting claims by Moscow and Berlin make it difficult to gauge the progress of the greatest battle of mechanized forces for all time. The Nazis assert that the Stalin line has been broken at all vital points and that Leningrad, Moscow and Kiev—the three great cities of the north, center and south respecively—are in danger of falling.

Insist They Are Holding

The Bolshevists on the other hand insist they are holding all along the great battle-line, and that there have been no marked changes overnight.

Well, obviously one of the combattants is mistaken. Still, out of the confusion it would appear that the Nazis have made advances. London thinks the greatest immediate threat is in the drive against Leningrad in the north and that likely is so. If the Finns and Nazis secure this great Baltic port, they will have virtually severed Russian communication with the Baltic and the Red navy there, and will have effected a turning movement against the Stalin line.

As we watch the Hitlerian forces fling themselves against the Russian front, the paramount question isn't whether this greatest of all war machines will make gains (for it may be expected to do so) but what the cost will be to Nazidom, in men and materials and time—especially time. That's the crux—time.

Hitler can afford much in lives and equipment, for these he has a vast store. But he can't be extravagant with time.

As I pointed out in Saturday's column, he has no more than three months—probably less—before the icy fingers of the fierce Russian winter will be clutching at his men and blotting out his communications. He must win his war decisively against the Bolshevists before then or find himself

Wiedemann, Borchers Awaited Guarantee of Safe Voyage to Homeland

San Francisco, July 14 (AP)—A Japanese liner with a polite but determined captain ploughed westward today without Fritz Wiedemann and Dr. Hans Borchers, expelled German consuls general who missed the boat on purpose, then spent 12 hectic hours trying to catch it.

The two top-ranking Nazis refused to board the N. Y. K. liner Yawata Maru with their staffs and families yesterday, fearing that without a British guarantee of safe conduct across the Pacific they would be risking seizure at sea.

Two hours or so after the Yawata Maru sailed, word came from the British embassy in Washington that the Nazis would not be molested en route.

Wiedemann then tried frantically to have the ship stopped. He radioed the captain asking that the Yawata turn about and come back for them at the German government's expense.

But the Japanese master replied he was sorry, in these words:

"Please express our greatest regrets we are unable to accept request to return."

This didn't stop Wiedemann, the San Francisco consul-general who was once Adolf Hitler's commanding officer. He telephoned the Japanese embassy in Tokyo and the N. Y. K. line's main office there, and the Yawata was flashed to a halt some 90 miles at sea, awaiting developments.

Wiedemann then sought transportation to the Yawata. Without success he attempted to hire a seaplane or boat. He asked the Coast Guard for a cutter, and the navy for a destroyer. But he was told that neither branch could give him an answer until it was decided whether the Yawata would turn about.

Then, near midnight, the German embassy in Washington informed the consulate here that the Yawata Maru "is too far out and there is no possibility of her turning back."

Dr. Otto Denzer, the ousted vice-consul here, said he could not book seats aboard a clipper plane for Tuesday, which would enable the Germans to catch the Yawata at Honolulu, so the Germans decided to sail July 31 aboard the Japanese liner Tatuta Maru.

There was no word from the state department, Dr. Denzer said, concerning the Germans' delay in leaving the country. The deadline originally was last Thursday.

There remained a possibility that the Nazis could fly east and join other German and Italian consular officials and agents leaving via the Atlantic on the liner West Point.

Agree to Seek Action On Retaining Selectees

Washington, July 14 (AP)—President Roosevelt and legislative leaders were reported reliably today to have agreed to seek prompt congressional action to retain selectees and members of the National Guard in training beyond their one year's service period.

Income Tax Charges

Camden, N. J., July 14 (AP).—Grave and unsmiling in contrast to his usual debonair manner, Enoch L. (Nucky) Johnson, Atlantic City Republican leader, was placed on trial today on charges of evading payment of $39,800 in income taxes. The 58-year-old Atlantic county treasurer, who draws a salary of $6,000 a year, is accused of failing to pay tax on an income of $199,226 in 1935, 1936 and 1937. Government officials contend this income came from protection fees in a numbers lottery at the New Jersey resort and an unreported profit from the construction of Atlantic City's union railroad station. Johnson reported an income of $87,076 for the three years.

Boy Drowned

Spofford Lake, N. H., July 14 (AP)—The body of Michael Burke, 14, who drowned yesterday in Spofford Lake, was shipped to his home in New York today for burial. The boy, the son of John Burke, New York department store executive, drowned while swimming at a summer camp.

Armistice Meeting

Cairo, Egypt, July 14 (AP)—The British Middle East general headquarters announced that British and Vichy officials are meeting at Acre today to arrange for signing of the armistice in Syria which, only initialled thus far, already has halted hostilities.

Planes Routed

Guns Foil Italians

Gibraltar, July 14 (AP)—Gibraltar's anti-aircraft guns drove off two Italian planes which tried a hit-and-run attack on the rock stronghold by moonlight at 3:15 a. m. today.

No bombs were known to have landed on Gibraltar but Spanish workers who arrived from nearby La Linea said they heard two loud explosions from the vicinity of Campamento, between La Linea and Algeciras.

The sound of motors overhead caused alarm in La Linea, where bombs from unidentified planes killed six persons last Saturday.

Public Should See What Corn Is Like

State Bureau Asks Names of Sellers Who Won't Allow Examination

Sweet corn will be sold to consumers minus the worms this year, if the State Agriculture Department can control things. The following statement has been issued by the department asking for names of sellers who refuse to allow the customer to examine sweet corn and ascertain the worm content of the ears:

"We want the names and addresses of stores and roadstand operators who refuse to examine corn for worm injury and who decline to let their customers make that examination," said Clifford R. Plumb, director of the department's bureau of food control.

"Scattered instances have come to our attention where the dealer sold corn 'as is' and the purchaser removed the husks at home only to find that all but two or three ears out of a dozen were unfit for human consumption."

Cigar Concern Changes Name of Corporation

A certificate has been filed with the Department of State and a copy is on record in the county clerk's office whereby G. W. Van Slyke & Horton, Inc., of this city has changed its name to the 25 Dederick Street Corp. The original corporation was filed July 16, 1936 and the new name is assumed on July 1, 1941, on application of Thomas A. Horton, president, and Frank A. McNamee, Jr., secretary.

On the same day a certificate was filed granting a certificate of incorporation to the G. W. Van Slyke & Horton, Inc., corporation which according to the certificate was organized to carry on the manufacture, sale and general dealing in cigars, tobacco and other tobacco products. The new corporation has 700 shares of stock, of which 500 shares are preferred, $100 par value shares and 200 shares no par common stock.

The principal office of the corporation is at 25 Dederick street, Kingston, and the directors are Thomas A. Horton of 47 Albany avenue; John Herlihy of 225 Manor avenue; Frank A. McNamee of Loudonville; C. Emery Lochner of Slingerlands and John R. Titus of 632 Providence street, Albany.

Return to Jobs

Detroit, July 14 (AP)—Approximately 40,000 automobile and body plant workers returned to their jobs today following settlement of a strike at the National Automotive Fibres, Inc., which supplies upholstery to the Chrysler Corp. and Briggs Manufacturing Co. Members of the United Automobile Workers (CIO), who went on strike last week in the course of a contract dispute, voted approval of a settlement plan yesterday. Union officials said the new contract grants wage increases from 8 to 16 cents an hour, but previous rates were not disclosed. The fibers plant employes approximately 1,000 workers.

C.I.O. President Collapsed

Pittsburgh, July 14 (AP)—C.I.O. President Philip Murray, who collapsed yesterday while on an outing with his family, was reported in a fair condition today at Mercy Hospital. An associate of the union leader said Murray had suffered an attack of appendicitis in Washington last spring, adding: "He has been working hard and hasn't taken time out to go to a hospital and take care of that condition."

Moscow Is Reported No Longer Protected by Stalin Line and Leningrad Caught

Different Story

Russians Declare No Significant Changes in Last Hours

By the Associated Press

Kiev is tottering under combined air and land assault, Moscow no longer is protected from German panzer thrusts by the Stalin line and Leningrad is caught by a German frontal drive and a Finnish flank offensive, German asserted today.

They declared that Red armies were falling apart and that the campaign was rushing to a climax on this, the 23d day of the eastward push.

Nazi forces were reported hammering at the gates of Kiev, and Berlin waited expectantly to hear that that gateway to the Ukraine's richest industrial and farming regions had been forced. German planes rained destruction on Kiev's warehouses, and hangars and even destroyed the city's waterworks, it was said.

That was the picture to be pieced together from the words of authorized German spokesmen, DNB, the official news agency, and—in slight degree—from the daily communique from Adolf Hitler's headquarters.

The German fuehrer's headquarters said Finnish troops had opened an attack in Karelia, on both sides of Lake Ladoga, in the sector close to Leningrad.

"The main strength of the powerful Soviety army is broken," asserted DNB, the official German news agency, reporting also that Nazi blitzkreig legions had slashed through the main Stalin line defenses "at all decisive points."

Dispatches from Ankara, Turkey, reported that Soviet government officials were preparing to move from Moscow, although the Germans are still some 300 miles from the Red capital, and that the British mission had already transferred to Gorki, 250 miles east.

By contrast, the Russians, after reporting that the 2,000-mile front was aflame with a series of gigantic new battles over the week-end, declared in this morning's communique that no major fighting took place during the night and that there had been no significant changes in the struggle in the last several hours.

In London, authoritative quarters said the Nazi drive toward Leningrad was "the most dangerous," but that Berlin claims of huge gains were regarded as "extravagant."

The German-controlled Holland radio said the fall of Kiev, the Ukraine capital, was "to be expected at any moment."

Jubilantly, Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels proclaimed to the German public through press and radio that "there is no salvation for the Soviet armies. . . . The decision in the east has already been attained."

As for a separate peace with Russia, the Germans made it clear that there could be no question of compromise. The Reich, it was said, had a "mandate" from all Europe to liquidate Bolshevism.

Nazi military dispatches said that in storming across the strategic Dnepr river, on the central front guarding Moscow, German troops had encountered a powerful Soviet defense sector, 30 miles deep in trenches, redoubts and pillboxes, and further guarded by swamps and meandering streams. German engineers swarmed into the boglands wearing snowshoe-like "swamp walkers" so they would not sink in the muck, it was said, and floated numerous

Action Is Sought

O'Ryan to Have Special Units Train as Boom for State Defense

Albany, N. Y., July 14 (AP)—Speedy formation and thorough drilling of volunteer units by local defense councils are recommended by New York State's Civilian Defense director.

Maj. Gen. John F. O'Ryan yesterday listed several essential units, including rescue, telephone and telegraph emergency repair, local guides, emergency water main and gas shut off and repair squads, billeting, evacuation, air raid wardens, animal control and salvage.

Asserting extensive factory areas would invite aerial attack, he stressed the necessity for cooperation between civilian and armed forces during such attack.

Arnold's Assertion Might Boom U. S. Sailplane Industry for Preparedness

Elmira, N. Y., July 14 (AP).—An assertion by the chief of army air forces that the United States must build "hundreds and possibly thousands" of large gliders caused predictions today of a great spurt in the motorless plane industry.

Major General Henry H. Arnold told the closing banquet of the 12th annual national soaring contest last night that with the continued help of sailplane enthusiasts "we shall have a glider force, we hope, second to none, ready for service whenever and wherever it may be needed."

"We know that we must have gliders," he said, "perhaps hundreds and possibly thousands of them, capable of carrying at least 15 men each, together with full equipment including rifles, machine guns and even light cannon."

Noting that a dozen army pilots have completed courses in glider instruction, he said additional classes "will be started in the immediate future."

"Our decision of months ago," he added, "to study the use of gliders in warfare, was horribly justified just a few weeks ago when German troops swarmed down in gliders onto Crete and captured it after bloody fighting."

Arnold's address, enthusiastically received in what he called the "gliding capital," brought comment from some of the nation's leading sailplane fliers and builders that large training and manufacturing expansions are expected.

An estimated 12,000 spectators saw the two-week contest end after a mock glider invasion was canceled because of unfavorable wind conditions. Officials explained lack of rising air currents prevented sustained soaring by the 40-50 planes which were to have swooped down upon being signalled.

John Robinson, 26, San Diego, Calif., won the national soaring title for the second successive year with 2,130 points and was awarded the $1,500 Edward S. Evans trophy.

Aluminum Drive Plans to Be Made At Local Session

All Aldermen and Ward Workers Are Scheduled to Be at Meeting Tomorrow Night

Final plans for the Aluminum Recovery Campaign in the city of Kingston will be made Tuesday evening at a meeting in the City Hall at 8 o'clock. All aldermen and all ward workers are expected to be present. The aldermen have been asked to serve as ward chairmen and organize the drive.

The aluminum recovery campaign is being sponsored by the Kingston Defense Council and will be under the supervision of an organization committee consisting of Thomas Horton as chairman, Mayor Conrad J. Heiselman, Edwin Strong, A. L. Harder and Captain L. S. Miller.

The general plan is to have two groups of workers. The first group is to consist entirely of ladies, who will make the first house-to-house canvass, explaining the necessity for the aluminum drive and asking all housewives, store managers and directors of all institutions, to make a careful search for all available pieces of aluminum.

The second group consisting of men will make the second-house-to-house canvass and collect all of the aluminum. Any utensils and other articles made of aluminum, which can possibly be spared, without the immediate need for replacement, should be set aside and donated to the government in the interest of national defense.

A transportation committee consisting of James G. Norton, chairman, and Max Oppenheimer as assistant, will make plans for the transportation of the aluminum from points in each ward to a central point in the city. These and other details will be worked out and explained at the general meeting tomorrow night.

The aluminum recovery campaign is being organized on a national basis and is vital to insure a continuous production of defense materialy. Every available piece of scrap aluminum is needed. This means a thorough canvass of every available source and of every conceivable aluminum article which can be spared. Hundreds of workers are needed. All ward or town chairmen will be pleased to have volunteers offer their services.

The entire campaign is being organized on a voluntary basis without any paid workers. All work is being donated, including transportation. It is the first real opportunity to show that voluntary democracy can and does work. You can do your part by helping make the aluminum recovery campaign a success.

Local Death Record

Susan Aiello La Rocca died today at the home of her parents on Flatbush avenue extension. Surviving are her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Luigi Aiello; four brothers, Joseph, Michael, Louis and Frank; two sisters, Mrs. Ralph Saccoman of this city and Mrs. Frank Carpino of East Kingston.

John Liddle of High Falls died Friday evening in the Benedictine Hospital. Funeral services were held this morning from the Frank J. McCardle Funeral Home in Rosendale and thence to St. Peter's Church in that village where at 10 o'clock a Mass of requiem was offered by the Rev. William J. McDonald. Burial was in St. Peter's cemetery, Rosendale. Sunday evening Father McDonald called at the Funeral Home and recited the Rosary.

Mrs. Lillian DuBois, widow of David P. DuBois, died at Fessenden's Sanitarium on Washington avenue Sunday at the age of 80. She is survived by two sons, Charles Preston DuBois and George DuBois of this city; a daughter, Mrs. Mabel Munson of California; a sister, Mrs. John Jansen of Hurley; a brother, Charles North, this city; three grandchildren, several nieces and nephews. Funeral service will be at the Marbletown Reformed Church Wednesday at 2 o'clock. The Rev. Paul Ammerman of Hurley will officiate. Burial will be in the Marbletown cemetery. Relatives will be bearers.

Mrs. Libbie M. Hasbrouck of New Paltz died in the home of her daughter, Mrs. Wilsey, at Highland, on Saturday after a brief illness. Mrs. Hasbrouck was 84 years old, and was born in Modena. She had lived her entire life in that vicinity, and was widely known. Surviving are one son, Raymond Hasbrouck of New Paltz; her daughter, Mrs. Wilsey; and a sister, Mrs. Emillie Terwilliger of New Paltz. Funeral services will be held from the home of her son on the New Paltz-Ohioville road on Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The Rev. Samuel McCormack of Highland will officiate, and burial will be in the Lloyd cemetery.

Pastor Denies Connection

According to the Rev. Charles F. Kirton, pastor of the Franklin Street A. M. Church, his church has no information and no interest in the coming baseball game at municipal stadium between the Kingston Recreations and the Black Yankees. Saturday evening it was reported on authority from the Recreations, that the baseball game would be played as a benefit for the Franklin Street A. M. Zion Church on July 30. The pastor also stated that any statement issued in regards to the game and his church would be misleading.

Tobacco rationing in Japan is expected to become more stringent.

Overall height of the Liberty Bell is five feet three inches.

New York, July 14 (AP)—Stocks had difficulty in keeping their balance in today's market.

While most leaders managed to take on minor fractions at one time or another, losers were plentiful near the final hour and a large assortment was unchanged. Dealings slackened appreciably, with transfers for the full proceedings at the rate of approximately 600,000 shares.

Wall Street apparently found little inspiration in the conflicting war news, Churchill's speech or the British-Bolshevist pact. Business optimism was the principal prop for individual stocks. Trimming of commitments here and there was attributed to the belief the market might be due for a "correction" in view of last week's upturn, best in more than a year.

Cotton and cottonseed oil futures swung forward in the commodities division. Bonds were comparatively steady.

Given an occasional lift were shares of Lockheed, Consolidated Aircraft, Crucible Steel, Montgomery Ward, N. Y. Shipbuilding, Southern Pacific, Texas Corp., U. S. Gypsum, U. S. Rubber and Goodyear.

Among laggards were J. I. Case, General Motors, Chrysler, Great Northern, Western Union, Anaconda and Douglas Aircraft.

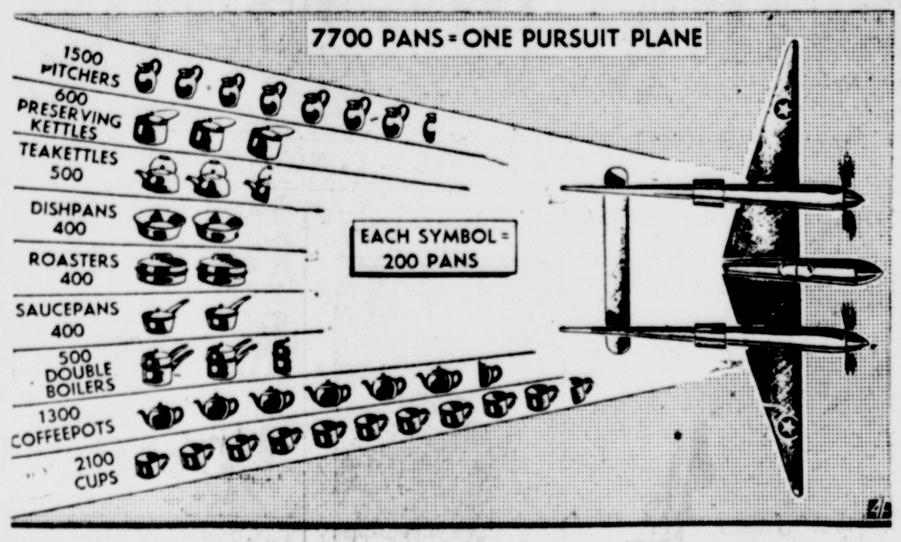
THE O. P. M. ANSWERS AN ALUMINUM QUESTION



The amount of aluminum used in a modern U. S. pursuit plane is broken down by this chart, which is based on data from the Office of Production Manage ment to show the amount of household aluminum equivalent to that used in a pursuit plane.

Henderson Says Party Is Over

Will Barge Ahead In Fight Against Inflation

Atlantic City, N. J., July 14 (AP)—Leon Henderson asserted bluntly today that "the party is over" as far as the retail sales boom occasioned by defense spending is concerned.

The administrator of the Office of Price Administration and Civilian Supply said in a speech prepared for a meeting of the New York Housewares Manufacturers Association that defense needs would require rationing of the materials which go into manufacturing articles the public has been buying in ever-increasing amounts.

It already has become apparent, he said, that practically no aluminum would be available for civilian use after military needs were met and "it is becoming evident now that the amount of copper, steel, nickel, zinc, chromite, manganese and a number of other materials required for armaments is going to be so great that we won't have enough left over for cousumers during goods."

This, he continued, "means rationing, not by cards at the stores but at the raw materials line, and rationing means that someone is going to get hurt."

Henderson said there was grave danger of inflation and that the Office of Price Administration was going to "barge ahead" in the fight against it.

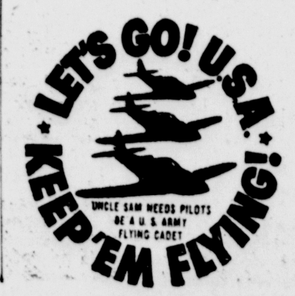
Twins Marry Twins

Rochester, N. Y., July 14 (AP)—Twins marry twins in a twin ceremony and depart on a twin honeymoon here today. Twin brothers, Ralph and Nicholas Lanzoine, 22, take as brides twin sisters, Estelle and Olga Piluschczak, 18, in St. Josaphat's Church. They'll honeymoon in the Thousand Islands. Estelle, younger of the girls by 20 minutes, marries Ralph, two minutes junior to Nicholas.



Local Man Held For Giving False Job Information

Charles E. Fox, 68, of 95 West O'Reilly street, was arrested Saturday by the police on a warrant sworn out by Kenneth A. Simpson, office manager of the local Division of Placement and Unemployment Insurance of the state, charging Fox with obtaining $15 unemployment benefits by making false represenations to the effect that he was unemployed.

This is the first case of its kind in Kingston.

Fox when arraigned before Judge Matthew V. Cahill in police court this morning pleaded not guilty and asked for an adjournment in order to retain an attorney. By consent the case was set down for a hearing on August 5.

According to the statement sworn to by Manager Simpson, in August, 1939, Fox applied at the office for benefits under unemployment insurance law, claiming, it is alleged by Simpson, that he was not working.

Mr. Simpson claims that the office paid Mr. Fox the sum of $15 on his representation that he was without work. Simpson in the information he swore to alleges that Fox was working at the time he was without work, and that he was employed by Thomas Kennedy & Son, local contractors, and was receiving $1 a day at his trade as a mason.

Aspects of War In China Given In News Picture

Current aspects of China's bitter struggle to drive out the invading Japanese armies and reestablish her national economy are pictured in the latest March of Time film, "China Fights Back," which is now being shown at the Broadway Theatre here and will continue until Friday.

Although China has already lost nearly half a million soldiers, and one out of every nine of her people are homeless refugees today, the film shows, the Chinese are now only just beginning to fight. Under the able leadership of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek and the best statesmen and military chiefs China has ever known, the Chinese people, with renewed courage, are today making a new stand against Axis-partner Japan.

Ninety per cent of China's industrial capacity has been completely destroyed or immobilized, the March of Time points out, but the Chinese counter-offensive is nevertheless being centered chiefly around a newly-established network of vital war industries organized in small units and sheltered in disguised farmhouses, huts, and even caves deep in the interior of China.

Last night, Bob Hope landed right in the middle of Uncle Sam's armament program in "Caught in the Draft," Paramount's all-out comedy now playing at the Broadway.

Dorothy Lamour, who co-stars with the popular screen and radio gagmaster, is in love with Buck Private Hope but she can't marry him until her father, the colonel, is convinced that something besides trouble flows through her hero's veins. The rookie is caught between the cross-fire of Dotty's sarcasm and the colonel's fury as he slides out of one tight spot into another.

British Report Sinking of Three Italian Vessels

London, July 14 (AP)—The admiralty reported tonight the sinking of at least three Italian vessels, including one carrying troops and supplies, in the Mediterranean.

All are credited to submarines of Britain's Mediterranean fleet.

The 5,232-ton Italian tanker Strombo, which previously had been damaged by a torpedo, was sent to the bottom while on her way to Italy for repairs, the admiralty said.

It reported also the sinking of a 5,500-ton supply ship, heavily laden, which was in a convoy escorted by an armed merchant cruiser and a destroyer; a large sailing vessel loaded with troops and military stores, in the Aegean Sea, and the probable sinking of two other vessels in a Libyan port.

"Another submarine, finding no enemy shipping on the high seas, attacked by gunfire the enemy anchorage of Ras Tayones, near Bengasi," the communique related.

"In this attack a supply ship of about 1,500 tons and an armed trawler were certainly damaged and probably sunk."

BOY SCOUT NEWS

Sunday, July 13, at Camp Half Moon, the Boy Scout Camp at Spruceton, was the first day of the second week of camp. If registration may be taken as a criterion for a successful season, Ulster-Greene Council has reached a peak. Nearly 70 scouts are in camp this week. This, coupled with last week's registration, makes an all-time high for the first two weeks at the scout camp.

Pleasant memories are lingering yet in the minds of the 30 scouts who were on the overnight hike on Spruceton Mountain. After a stiff three hours the scouts reached the top. They located a spring, built lean-to's and cooked their evening meal. Although they were six miles from camp, they were able to see and discriminate among the many buildings and tents at the campsite far below in the valley. The scouts had a thrill when they routed out an old black bear on the return trip.

The dam is finished and the pool received an enthusiastic initiation. Every boy in camp this week looks forward to making up all lost time at the new swimming pool.

Many activities are in the offing for those scouts who are in camp this week. Among these activities are: An overnight hike; exploration hike; special campfire activities; water sports; fishing trips and the ever-popular scoutcraft activities. Saturday night will be the first camp court of honor. The scouts wish to extend to their parents and friends a cordial invitation to attend the court. The staff will have a special campfire ceremony in the form of a Camp Half Moon dedication period.

There are openings for a half dozen boys this week and next. Any boy not yet registered and wishing to do so may contact R. Gardner Burns, scout executive, 277 Fair street, Kingston, or Howard Mosher, camp director, Spruceton.

It is of special interest to parents to know that each scout has a physical examination on his arrival at camp and also as a safety measure Dr. H. W. Keator visits camp the first day of each weekly period and rechecks each scout. One of the parents visiting camp was very much pleased to read the menus which were posted and found that these were prepared by a dietitian and care is taken that fresh fruit and vegetables are served to the scouts. A feature which has been established at Camp Half Moon is the sterilization of all dishes after washing. The officers in charge wash all dishes and then they are placed in wire baskets and dipped in boiling water and thus do not need to be dried by towels. This insures clean dishes for every scout at each meal. Other safety measures is a personal inspection given each day by the camp director so that if any boy has a cut or feels sick he will receive attention quickly. The staff is proud to state that it has had no serious illness nor injuries by this close check-up. A few blisters and cuts and scratches receiving prompt attention do not develop into anything serious.

ELLENVILLE

Ellenville, July 14. — Frank Hoornbeck, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence A. Hoornbeck, is spending two weeks at Camp Orange, near Middletown.

Mrs. Raymond Nash of Maplewood, N. J., has been spending the week with her mother, Mrs. Ida Kramel.

Miss Olive Schoonmaker of New York was the week-end guest of her cousin, Miss Mabel M. Wilklow.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Shurter and family of Cleveland have arrived to spend the summer at their cottage, at Beaver Dam.

Myron S. Vanderlyn of Oyster Bay, has been spending a few days with his son, Ed Vanderlyn.

William Pancoast of Johnson City, and Mr. and Mrs. Travis Kipp of Walton were week-end guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Zupp of Pine street. On their return home Sunday they were accompanied by Mrs. Frank Kipp, who had been enjoying a week's visit with the Zupps.

Two Marriages Highlight Gossip Of Film Colony

Hollywood, July 14 (AP)—Contracts—two martial, two cinematic—and an accident or two pattern the movietown gossip today.

The martial contracts: William Holden and Brenda Marshall, John Shelton and Kathryn Grayson.

Holden, 23, and the dark-haired Miss Marshall, 24, flew to Las Vegas, Nev., in company with Mr. and Mrs. Brian Donlevy, and were married at 3 p. m. yesterday, at a dude ranch near Las Vegas, by the Rev. Charles Dunn of the Christian Church.

They had been engaged since Miss Marshall's divorce a few weeks ago from actor Houston Gaines, but had been keeping company for more than a year. The bride, formerly of San Antonio, Texas, has a 3-year-old daughter. Holden is a native of O'Fallon, Ill.

Shelton, 26, and Miss Grayson, 19, were married at Las Vegas Saturday. Shelton was married once before. His bride is a singer whose voice has been heralded here as rivalling that of Deanna Durbin.

Cinematic Contracts: Inez Cooper, of T. S. Cooper, retired Atlanta minister, visiting Hollywood, went to a cafe to "see some stars" and was seen by director Mervyn LeRoy. The result: A contract, terms undisclossed, with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer.

Diana Dill, 18, daughter of Thomas M. Dill, former attorney general of Bermuda, won superior court approval of a film contract with Warner Brothers. Terms undisclosed.

Western film star Charles Starrett, 38, suffered a shoulder fracture and facial cuts in an automobile accident.

Errol Flynn informed harbor officials his prized German Schnauzer dog had disappeared from his yacht, Sirocco, during a short sail from San Pedro to Newport harbor.

False Alarm Turned In

Shortly before 11 o'clock Sunday evening there was considerable excitement on West Chestnut street, at Montrepose avenue, when some one turned in a false alarm of fire from Box 3321 at School No. 2 to which the fire department responded.

Planets Group Oddly

Close grouping of five planets of the solar system gave Auckland, New Zealand, watchers a varied and thrilling spectacle recently. Mercury, Venus, Jupiter, Saturn and Uranus were huddled in the constellation of Taurus. The sun also was in the vicinity, and numerous conjunctions occurring within a few days could be observed in the glare of twilight.

Declares Pension Figures Available

Keresman Says Taxpayers Will Pay $124,140 for Part of City Employes

To the Editor:

On June 16th, I sent you a communication which dealt, to some extent, upon the fact that the mayor has not given the people of this city the information as to the cost and the amount the taxpayers will be required to pay for including all city employes in the State Retirement System.

At that time, I pointed out that this would be a large figure and should be made known to the people who have to pay the bill.

The mayor has seen fit to destroy the local police and fire pension system, which up to the time of their destruction and the forcing of the policemen in the state system, did not cost the taxpayers of Kingston one dollar in property taxes.

I also pointed out that the stressing, by the mayor, of a fantastic "liability" in the police pension system, was a smoke screen to hide from the public the great liability shouldered upon the taxpayers through the mayor and other high officials of the city, joining the state pension system, largely at the cost of the taxpayers.

Up to the present time, the mayor has not considered it of sufficient importance to make this figure public, although it is available, for the report of the state actuary who made the survey, shows that the taxpayers of Kingston will be required to pay $124,140.00, for deficiency and current payments for about one-half of the city employes who joined the state pension system, from January 2, 1940, to January 2, 1941. This is not the entire cost. This $124,140.00 covers only 100 city employes which is but a part of the total number.

I am sure that it will be a revelation and interesting to the taxpayers of Kingston, when the figures of all city employes are made public.

Perhaps the mayor figures that a new cost of much more than $124,140.00 is of no concern to the taxpayers, at any rate, here is the information which I think you and the taxpayers should have.

Now it was the city's claim in argument of why the police pension fund should not be used for the purpose for which it was accumulated by the policemen, through the cooperation of the people of our city, that the men should be compelled to pay for those older men who were retired soon after the local police pension fund was set up.

The mayor reasoned that these older men had taken out much more than they had put in the fund. In the light of this argument the taxpayers of Kingston might find interest in the fact that four city employes have already retired and are now drawing their pension for life. Some of these men made but one payment into the pension system before they retired. This is perfectly all right, but if the taxpayers are to be told that policemen did this and the older men took out more than they paid in, then it is all right, too, that the taxpayers who pay this new pension bill, be told all the facts.

In the case of the policemen the younger men paid for the older men, in this case the taxpayer pays and keeps on paying, for the older men and the younger men too.

The mayor has used the spotlight on the policemen pointing out that the policemen and the taxpayers would be better off if the local police fund were destroyed and the members join the state system. The policemen pointed out that their fund was sound and they could continue to maintain it. Now, we believe, the mayor should turn the spotlight so the taxpayers can see the picture for what it is, and what they will be required to pay.

PETER KERESMAN.

Desert To Yield Crops

India is to have one of the largest irrigation projects in the world. More than 21,000,000 acres of desert will be converted into fertile land to offer a new life for millions of people. Six men in a quiet country mansion, where a London engineering firm has established wartime offices, are preparing blueprints for the project.

BURNING HIS 17-ACRE WHEAT FIELD

Shock by shock, Marion Hatt, Jackson county, Mich., farmer, burns his 17-acre wheat field, rebelling against what he terms "too much government dictatorship on crops." The 55-year-old farmer began destroying the wheat when he was refused a wheat marketing permit because he exceeded the A. A. A. quota by two acres.

Mr. and Mrs. Conley and son of North Chestnut street have returned from a trip to Lake George.

At the New Paltz Central district school election held in the high school auditorium Tuesday night Frank Elliott and Raymond Morris were nominated to fill the vacancy of Kenneth Vanderlyn, whose term expired. Mr. Elliott received 185 votes and Mr. Morris 20. Another movement was to place a sum in the budget for transportation of parochial school children to St. Joseph's School, Rosendale. This proposal was turned down by a vote of 185 to 15. By a vote of 157 to 63 the district voted to raise $8,800 for instruction of school children at New Paltz Normal School. It is understood the commissioner has ordered a different set-up in the distribution of public money and payment of teachers. This will cost this central school district between $2,000 and $3,000 a year, and $8,800 must be paid by the district and approximately $6,800 will be refunded by the state at the end of the school year. The budget adopted at Tuesday night's annual meeting of New Paltz district provides for raising $38,000 by local taxes.

Germany's Threat to Stalinist Regime Focuses Interest on Romanov Pretender

By LOUIS P. LOCHNER
By Cable to AP Feature Service

Berlin—An unassuming airplane mechanic of 23, known in northern England as Mister Michaelov and popular as a graceful dancer, some day may emerge as successor to the murdered Czar Nicholas II of Russia.

Mister Michaelov is none other than sturdy, broad-shouldered Grand Duke Vladimir Kirilovich of the House of Romanov.

Now, more than ever, he is pretender to the imperial Russian throne. In his modest chateau in St. Briac on the German-occupied French coast of Brittany, he watches Germany's fight against Stalin closely and fervently, with deep emotion but without illusions.

The grand duke knows that Germany, at least for the present, is not interested in monarchical restoration. He knows also that those devoted Russians who for the past quarter of a century have kept the monarchical idea alive in the hearts of their countrymen are mostly well past middle age, and that many of the high-titled are penniless taxi drivers, movie supers, restaurant waiters and hotel porters.

The pretender to the Russian throne is a second cousin of the last of the Czars. His father, Grand Duke Cyril, was the son of another Vladimir, the grand duke uncle of Czar Nicholas II.

Yet Vladimir never leaves doubts in anybody's mind that he regards himself as legally entitled to rule Russia, and that by terms of his late father's will he must keep the Romanov standard flying, come what may.

Extremely cautious in such few public utterances as he has made—for he realizes the delicacy of his situation as an emigre—Vladimir nevertheless always accepts acclamations by Russian monarchists when they hail him as the Russian empire's next chief of state.

Born In Exile

In brief, terse words he calls upon God to restore his fatherland to its traditional form of government. In so doing he apostrophizes a fatherland he never saw, for he was born in exile at Halko, near Borga, Finland, on Aug. 17, 1917, and lived most of his life in France, Germany and England.

GRAND DUKE VLADIMIR
His short-cropped moustache is more English than anything else.

Like his brother-in-law, Prince Louis Ferdinand of Prussia, who worked in the Ford factory at Detroit, Vladimir knows an industrial worker's life. During the year before the outbreak of the present war he worked as a mechanic in a factory in northern England.

What pictures of sailing vessels are to President Roosevelt, drawings of motors are to Grand Duke Vladimir. His little study at St. Briac has many pictures of motor types.

Uses Father's Incognito

Vladimir, as do most educated high born Russians, speaks English, German and French with the same facility as the native Russian with his parents and a devoted nurse taught him from babyhood.

While working in the airplane factory he assumed the Russian name of Michaelov which was used by his father as an incognito in days before the World War.

His wavy brown hair, combed back, gives a touch of the artistic to his face, which as in the case of many other Romanovs is mobile and expressive. His voice is rich and sonorous, his eyes a grayish-blue.

Fond of outdoor sports, he not only motors but swims, sails, plays tennis and golf. Graceful dancer that he is, and passionately fond of jazz music, he has society belles craning their necks after him.

Most of his education—in the winter on the Riviera and in summer partly at St. Briac and partly at Coburg, Germany—was by private Russian, French, English and German tutors, but his bachelor's degree was awarded him by the Russian University of Paris after he passed prescribed examinations.

In Favor With Royalty

Before becoming an airplane mechanic, the young grand duke attended London University, where he studied economics and political science. King George and other members of the English royal family took an active interest in his welfare, as did the late Queen Marie of Romania and later King Carol.

But the late German emperor, Wilhelm II, also took a liking to the youth, whom he learned to know on his eightieth birthday in January, 1939, when Vladimir represented the Romanov dynasty for the occasion.

For a while after the German occupation of northern France Vladimir appeared to have had financial difficulties, since he was cut off from all his ordinary sources of income, but this was a passing phase.

He lives modestly and unpretentiously in his simple St. Briac country home of gray stone, with whitewashed walls, dark stained floors, square windows relieved by chintzes and such few Russian articles of furniture and objects of art as escaped the war and revolution.

AMERICAN CREED

The ten-point family creed outlined the night evening by John D. Rockefeller, Jr., in a public address in behalf of the United Service Organizations, must have sounded to many hearers like the simple but unformed creed of the average American. It gave also a good outline of democracy.

"I believe," said Mr. Rockefeller, "in the supreme worth of the individual and in his right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

"I believe that every right implies a responsibility; every opportunity an obligation, every possession a duty.

"I believe in the dignity of labor, whether head or hand; that the world owes no man a living, but that it owes every man an opportunity to make a living.

"I believe that thrift is essential to well-ordered living and that economy is a prime requisite of a sound financial structure, whether in government, business or personal affairs.

"I believe in the sacredness of a promise, that a man's word should be as good as his bond; that character—not wealth or power or position—is of supreme worth.

"I believe that the rendering of useful service is the common duty of mankind and that only in the purifying fire of sacrifice is the dross of selfishness consumed and the greatness of the human soul set free.

"I believe in an all-wise and all-loving God, named by whatever name, and that the individual's highest fulfillment, greatest happiness and widest usefulness are to be found in living in harmony with His will.

"I believe that love is the greatest thing in the world; that it alone can overcome hate; and that right can and will triumph over might."

DECADENCE

Boys who regard themselves as he-men may be taken down a peg by the remarks of Grover Cleveland Alexander, famous baseball pitcher. He finds them less hardy than in the old days.

"When I was a kid," he says, "if a fellow wanted to get somewhere he either walked or rode a horse. Now the kids jump into a car and ride a block or two to buy a package of cigarettes. Naturally they get softer."

They're not all like that. But there's probably enough truth in the charge to make it stick, in spite of all the wholesome boy scout and other activities.

HOLIDAY ACCIDENTS

When the last day of the long holiday that included the Fourth had passed and the last figures were in, it was found that the automobile death toll was only 384, nearly 100 under the prediction of the National Safety Council. It was also only 14 more than the average for three-day week-ends as computed by the Council.

The total for all accidents for the period was 628 deaths. Only five of them were caused by fireworks, but that was three more than in 1940.

All of which suggests that not all Fourth of July "insanity" has to do with fireworks, or even with automobile driving. Human carelessness never takes a holiday, although progress is being made in curtailing some of its common manifestations.

POLISH POWER

The great outpouring of American appreciation for the life and work of Paderewski, on the occasion of his funeral in New York, was a tribute not only to the musician-statesman himself but to his race. In him was personified much of the vigor and drive of the Polish spirit, which flowers so readily with opportunity and rises again from every disaster.

The Poles surely deserve more than fate has yet given them. Crushed and scattered as a nation, they are still fighting for liberty on every free battle-front in the world. There is something in them that their temporary conquerors never understand, something the world greatly needs.

HORSE-LOVERS IN AUTOS

The horse, one of the two noblest animals, still has plenty of friends. There was striking evidence at Butler, N. J., the other day.

Two New York men acquired a horse and buggy and started out, bright and early, to drive to Blairstown 80 miles away, where one of them had a farm. The mare was 10 years old. The buggy was a high-seated affair of undetermined age.

They drove all day in the hot sun, apparently without thinking of gas—we mean water and oats. The men had an occasional drink but the horse didn't. At one o'clock the next morning they were still going on the concrete pavement. As they came into Butler the horse, blinded by the terrible lights from cars, continually in danger of collision but still struggling along, fell in the shafts. Then what happened showed there was still decency among men.

Motor cars stopped and their occupants gathered around. Clumsily they loosed the bit and traces. Twenty men raised the mare from the pavement and got her over to the side of the road. A woman, with streaming eyes, attacked the owner and nearly knocked him down. Other motorists waded in and administered punishment to the drivers. Some even talked of lynching.

Troopers arrived and took the owner and his friend to jail. The horse was comfortably bedded down in a barn near by. She had come 35 miles on that hot, hard pavement, in the killing heat. A veterinarian said it might take her a week to recover. But probably she will not be abused again.

THAT BODY OF YOURS

By James W. Barton, M. D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act.)

ARTIFICIAL BREATHING

For years the "regular" method of restoring the apparently drowned, and victim of smoke, gas, and electrocution, has been the Schafer method of artificial respiration. To these must now be added the victims of air raids; "the blast of air created by high explosive shells on bursting may knock people breathless without actual wounding." Waves of intense smoke from burning buildings, escaping gas from broken pipes and short circuiting of electric cables may produce casualties which call for artificial respiration.

Despite the fact that I have described the Schafer method several times, there must be some who do not know about it and how, in such a simple manner, they may save the life of one recovered from the water, a burning building, a closed garage with a running motor engine, or one who has touched a live wire.

Place the patient face downwards on the ground, then, without stopping to remove clothing, commence artificial respiration, as every instant of delay is serious.

Put yourself astride or on one side of the patient's body, in a kneeling position, facing his head. Placing your hands flat in the small of the back with the thumbs nearly touching and the fingers spread out on each side of the body over the lowest ribs, lean forward and steadily allow the weight of your body to fall over upon them and so produce a firm downward pressure which must not be violent.

By this means air and water is driven out of the patient's lungs. Immediately after pressing downward swing backward, rapidly, removing the pressure but without lifting your hands from patient's back. Repeat this forward and backward movement (pressure and relaxation of pressure) every five seconds. Count two on pressure downward and count three when pressure is removed. This is twelve times a minute for the pressure and release or removal of pressure. Keep this movement up until natural breathing or respiration is restored.

When these movements have to be kept up for a long time, it is recommended that the operator kneel at the side of the patient instead of astride, owing to the strain on the ligaments of the widely separated thighs in the astride position.

Washington — Answering the mail orders:

F. T. D., Carson City, Nex.—The principal reason that the U. S. had no definite advance information on the German declaration of war against Russia is that the state department and most other people reasoned, on the basis of their information, that Joseph Stalin would not fight. There were a few observers who predicted the Nazi-Communist war and The Associated Press carried a story from Ankara that forecast hostilities, but even those brave souls opined it would be sometime in the future—not the present. It was felt that any open conflict, no matter what its outcome, would mean the end of Stalin's regime in Russia—therefore, he would not permit the situation to come to shooting warfare, even if he had to make great concessions.

I. T., Nashville, Tenn.—Secretary of State Hull, though not seriously ill, is not in the best of health. During periods when he is indisposed, the reins of the state department are nearly always handed over completely to Under-secretary Sumner Welles. That is probably why you have seen Welles more often in the news recently than Hull.

A. F. A., Miami Beach, Fla.—The "economic warfare" machinery has not been set up simply because of a behind-the-scenes scrap over what department shall handle it. The leading contestants now are Jesse Jones (as Secretary of Commerce) and Cordell Hull (as Secretary of State). Jones contends that it is primarily a matter of commerce and economics and therefore belongs in his department. Hull contends that any action whatever by the proposed commission would so effect our foreign policy that it would be silly to place it anywhere else than under the watchful eye of the state department.

G. L., Houston, Tex.—Men selected for the army air corps must have been citizens of the United States for at least 10 years.

R. S., West Chester, Pa.—I take it all back. Lt. Col. Harold N. Gilbert is the man credited with originating the phrase, "Keep 'Em Flying," Colonel Gilbert is in the adjutant general's office and we did know, as I reported, that the phrase came from that general direction. However, a number of army officials did claim to remember that it was used in the World War, that it originated in England, that it came from the naval aviation training center at Pensacola, Fla. There seems now to be no doubt of it. Colonel Gilbert had the idea and was the first to try to promote it. His superiors took it up and gave it an official boost. There is one fly in the ointment. The phrase does not seem to be sweeping the country. Like a popular song, it may take hold at any time, or it may lie around for years virtually unnoticed and then overnight become as common in conversational stock as "So long," "What's doing?" "Thumbs up," or "I'll be seeing you."

Mrs. L. S. T., Wilkes-Barre, Pa.—According to Rep. Herbert Bonner of North Carolina, who should know, there is about 1¼ cents worth of tobacco (farm price) in a 15-cent package of cigarets. The rest is processing, manufacturing, wrapping, advertising, state and federal taxes, and commissions.

K. B., Columbia, Mo.—Junior and senior medical students may apply for membership in the Medical Administrative Corps Reserve. After completing their studies, they then will be appointed medical officers in the regular medical corps reserve. The dean of your medical school will handle your application for you. Acceptance in the MACR will relieve you of being called immediately for selective service—unless, of course, you flunk out of medical school.

State Food Control Ruling on Sweet Corn

Albany, July 14—Roadstand and all other food dealers are going to supply the public with storted ears of sweet corn or the State Bureau of Food Control is going to know why.

The bureau today appealed to the public to provide the addresses of roadstand and store proprietors who insist that their customers take sweet corn "as is" without examination. Seizure of corn offered for sale under such conditions will be the penalty imposed on those dealers, said Clifford R. Plumb, director of the Bureau of Food Control, State Department of Agriculture and Markets.

"We want the names and addresses of stores and roadstand operators who refuse to examine corn for worm injury and who decline to let their customers make that examination," Mr. Plumb said in asking the public to communicate that information to his office.

"Scattered instances have come to our attention where the dealer sold corn 'as is' and the purchaser removed the husks at home only to find that all but two or three ears out of a dozen were unfit for human consumption. We have reason to believe that when the dealer makes no examination of the corn he offers for sale, and refuses to permit the prospective purchaser to examine it, he suspects the presence of worms.

"While New York State sweet corn is generally free from such damage, it sometimes happens that worms get into a corn field despite all the care the grower can exercise. That is unfortunate but when it happens, the product should not be peddled to the public. Our force of inspectors is too small to attempt a state-wide investigation of roadstands, but if the public will cooperate with us I think we can reduce the sweet corn racket almost to the vanishing point.

The bureau is now making a summer drive for sanitation in all places where food is prepared and served. Mr. Plumb said particular attention will be paid to eating places largely patronized by tourists and where food and confections are served at fairs and summer

Latest Legislative Trend — Confiscationist Versus Anti-Confiscationist and Income Tax Pool Is Example

(By DAVID LAWRENCE)

Washington, July 14—There's a new division in Congress and in government generally. It is no longer merely the cleavage between New Deal and anti-New Deal or radical and conservative, but confiscationist and anti-confiscationist which represents the latest trend in legislation.

No better example of the new trend toward confiscation of the citizen's property without due compensation as hitherto provided by the constitution could be given than in the latest proposal to pool the income of husband and wife and subject each to higher rates than would have to be paid by two other citizens with like income.

Instead of hitting the wealthy alone, the new tax proposal hits more severely the persons of modest income. Thus the tax increase due to compulsory joint returns is 178 per cent at the $3,000 level. At $6,000 of joint income the rate of increase in taxes is 191 per cent while two other citizens under the new tax law pay an increase of only 12 per cent. With $9,000 of joint income the percentage of increase goes to 231 per cent as compared with a 25 per cent increase for two other citizens filing separate returns but having like income.

Up in the higher brackets no such rate of increase is to be found. Thus at $90,000 of joint income the rate of increase is 79 per cent as against 27 per cent for two other citizens and at $150,000 the increase is 60 per cent as compared with 18 per cent. As for the top brackets where there is a joint income of $900,000, the percentage of increase due to compuusory joint return is only 11.5 per cent as compared with 6 per cent increase in taxes to be paid by two other citizens with the same total of $900,000 income.

In figuring out these percentages, it is assumed that the tax payers have no dependents, that the husband in all cases earns two-thirds of the aggregate income and his wife one-third and that the husband uniformly takes a $1,500 exemption and the wife $500.

Such discrimination in tax rates as between citizens earning the same income is unheard of in the history of American tax legislation and it may be that many citizens will wish to take advantage of their constitutional privilege of refusing to pay what they may be advised is an unconstitutional levy. Such citizens would have logical warrant for refusing to pay because the decisions of the Supreme Court in the past plainly forbade the pooling of husband's and wife's property for income tax purposes. Said the court in 1931:

"Since then, in law and in fact, the wife's income is in the first degree her separate property and in no sense that of her husband, the question presented is whether the state has power by an income tax law to measure his tax, not by his own income, but, in part, by that of another."

The court then declared the tax "arbitrary and a denial of due process" and in support of its view held that the tax could not be justified merely as a means of preventing frauds and evasions or as a regulation of marriage. Even the dissenting opinion did not suggest that a federal statute could govern property rights of spouses as could a state statute. Other decisions of the Supreme Court follow the same line of reasoning with respect to the "profound inequality" in arbitrarily fixing the tax rate of one citizen with reference to the earnings of another. The Supreme Court has even gone so far as to hold that even where a husband and wife receive a joint income from a single source they have the legal right to file a separate return for tax purposes.

The principal objection to the filing of a compulsory joint return for husband and wife is that if such a forced combination of the income of two citizens is upheld by the present Supreme Court, it could mean that thereafter Congress might feel justified in forcing joint returns for father and son, sister and brother, mother-in-law and husband or wife and father-in-law depending upon how much confiscation was sought by the arbitrary rates.

If revenue is the sole object and unfairness and discrimination as between citizens is to be disregarded, then any communal unit can be made the basis of taxation by the national legislature. There are some confiscationists on the new Supreme Court, but it is doubtful whether they have a majority. Hence the disks which the confiscationists in Congress are taking in introducing a complicated and arbitrary form of taxation hardly would seem to be worth the cost to the government in the confusion and litigation that will inevitably follow enactment of a mandatory joint return.

"AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

With a mass of humanity jamming the streets; flags flying; auto horns shrieking, and men, women and children cheering Kingston and Ulster county on Wednesday, October 1, 1919, welcomed home its sons who had heard democracy's call in 1917 and 1918, and answered.

It was one of the biggest welcome home parades ever held in the history of the city, and for the occasion a large Welcome Home arch had been erected on Broadway between the city hall and the high school, in almost the same location as the welcome arch erected at the time the boys returned from the Spanish-American War in 1898.

As the parade moved along Broadway overhead from the skies dropped flowers thrown by Lieut. Bertram Tate from his airplane as he flew along over the line of march.

Following the parade the boys who had seen service in the first World War were entertained at a dinner in the state armory on Broadway, and following dinner a big service men's athletic meet was staged at the Athletic Field when former athletic stars of old Ulster Academy and Kingston Academy, who as men had been called to the colors, occupied the athletic spotlight by winning a number of firsts in the games staged.

Among the former academy stars who again displayed their athletic skill that afternoon I recall Wat Wheeler, Andy Murphy, Walt H. Gill, Tom Dolan, Win Entrott, Fred Stoudt, George F. Kaufman, Clarence Westfall, Bill Newkirk, Art Fox and Clarence Clemmons.

The stockholders of the Kingston Trust Company meeting on September 15, 1919, voted to buy the Hotel Weiner on Broadway at Dederick street, and remodel it into a modern banking house. As soon as alterations were completed the Trust Company opened it as a branch bank to the Main street bank.

And speaking of banks and banking I recall that during September a columnist writing in The Freeman said "they say a dollar don't go far these days, but mine roam so far away they never come back."

It is interesting to recall that on October 1, 1919, the day of the welcome home parade, that Officer Cornelius Van Buren filed his resignation as a member of the Kingston police department to take effect the following month.

October 2, of that year, Charles T. Coutant, widely known real estate broker, died. I recall that during the year the Bull Moose political party was active, that Mr. Coutant was one of the leaders of the Ulster county organization.

"SEND ME DOWN," by Henry Steig.

For what it sets out to be, which is an explanation and justification of hot jazz and the man who makes it, Henry Steig's "Send Me Down" is close to perfect. The reason it bored me probably is because I had as soon spend an evening in a monkey cage as listen to a hot jazz band repeat those alleged improvisations, each like the last, each louder than the last, more frenetic, less logical.

The novel is chiefly about Frank and Pete Davis, who decide rather early in their lives that they are to be musicians, and begin the grind in a "conservatory." Frank appears to have more talent than Pete, and gets places with his piano much faster than Pete with his violin. To point up this part of the story, Mr. Steig has—sawing away in the apartment under the Davis boys—a little Jewish chap named Solly, who is determined to be a concert artist. It is essential to the author's purpose that Solly fail, and of course he fails resoundingly.

Then the Davis boys make changes. Pete finds, by playing in a boys' band, that his forte is clarinet and saxophone; Frank eventually decides to abandon straight music for jazz, and experiments with a lot of instruments. But Pete leaves home and picks up his experience the hard way; Frank sticks around, finishes college, entangles himself with a girl, and then follows the lead of his brother.

One year the brothers are on top of the financial heap; another they are on the bottom. There are pages and pages of stuff about jazz, all written pretty dead-pan, and many of which could be skipped with small hurt to the story. Truth to tell, the story grows just a little too smart — Harelm for me at times, particularly when Frank walks out on his wife and falls in love with a heavy-drinking girl named Nanda —who is a Negress. And the end seems a bit inconclusive to me also, although what the end is Mr. Steig will have to tell you.

But one must say that Mr. Steig knows the jazz world from experience, and that his experience shows on every page. It may be that it shows too much. It does not make a good novel to talk endlessly about the chief character's advertising business, for example, and I see no reason why changing advertising to music would be much help.

New Home Building Hits 11 Year Peak In 310 U. S. Cities

Minneapolis, July 14—New home building in 310 leading American cities in 1940 reached the highest value and volume in 11 years, said E. E. Crabb, president of Investors Syndicate, here today in reporting on preliminary results of the company's annual national housing survey.

"Volume and value of new homes last year," continued Mr. Crabb, "approximated ten and a half times the 1934 totals, the low for the last eleven years.

"Available for the first time is the number of dwelling units ten years or less old. In the 310 cities studied they approximated 915,286, or 6.35 per cent of the 14,417,715 dwelling units in these same cities on April 1, 1940.

"A record-breaking number (1,500,000) of marriages, wide shifts in population resulting from the defense program, and rising national income, sped home building last year. High rents in some regions, decreased vacancies in many sections, further undoubling of families, and the ease of financing, coupled with the obsolescence of existing home units, likelise accelerated residential construction.

"The third lowest per person new home cost in 11 years also contributed substantially to the record-breaking home building last year. Such costs declined 3.9 per cent from the preceding year.

"Dwelling units put up in these 310 cities last year were only 3,637 less than the entire new homes built in these same cities from 1931 to 1935, inclusive."

The 310 cities included in the survey, located in 41 states and the District of Columbia, have a population, according to the 1940 U. S. Census, of 50,035,520, or 38 per cent of the nation's population. Ninety-two of these cities have a population of 100,000 or more.

New homes built in these 310 cities in 1940 housed 947,000 people. This was 79,336, or 9.1 per cent, more than the 867,664 newly housed in these same cities in 1939. Residential building last year in these identical cities provided for 82.4 per cent more people than in 1930, when only 519,192 were newly sheltered.

"Homes newly erected last year in these 310 cities," continued Mr. Crabb, "provided for nearly 21.3 per cent of the total—4,436,884—people accommodated with new houses from 1931 to 1940, inclusive. Last year new housing provided for 947,000 people, peak for the last 11 years. In 1934, low for the last 11 years, only 89,896 people were newly housed. The 1940 volume was ten and a half times that of 1934.

1940 Valuations

"During 1940, for the sixth successive year, value of new homes built in these cities increased over the preceding year. New houses put up last year, based on building permits filed in these 310 cities, were valued at $837,556,236. This total was $38,992,429 or 4.9 per cent more than the 1939 valuation of $798,563,807, and 42 per cent, or $247,807,688, above the 1930 valuation of $589,748,548. Likewise, new home valuations last year were 10.7 times their low level of $78,592,821 reached in 1934. And the 1940 valuations, which were the highest in 11 years, amounted to 19.7 per cent of the total of $4,242,584,993 for 1931 to 1940, inclusive.

"The 310 cities in this annual building survey had a population of $47,102,842, according to the final 1930 figure of the U. S. Census Bureau. These identical cities in 1940, according to the same authority, had a population of 50,035,520, a gain of 2,932,678, or 6.2 per cent, over the 1930 population. The present population of these cities is 38 per cent of the 131,669,275 population for the nation in 1940. New homes put up in these same cities from 1931 to 1940, inclusive, provided shelter for 4,436,884 people."

Dwelling units in these 310 cities on April 1, 1940, numbered 14,417,715, according to the 1940 Census. In these same cities, from January 1, 1931 to April 1, 1940, according to figures of Investors Syndicate, new dwelling units built numbered 915,286, or 6.35 per cent of the total standing on that date. In other words, 13,502,429 dwelling units in these 310 cities were built before 1931.

"The average cost per person supplied with new housing," explained Mr. Crabb, "in these 310 cities in 1940 was $884.43, a decline of $35.92, or 3.9 per cent, from the 1939 average of $920.35. Last year's cost of new housing per person, however, was $251.56, or 22.1 per cent, lower than the 1930 average of $1,135.89. This 1940 per person cost was the third lowest in 11 years. In 1933 such cost was $875.22, and in 1934 it was $874.26. The 10-year average per person cost was $953.96."

The Investors Syndicate survey is based on government statistics and estimates. These figures do not reveal the adequacy of available housing in 310 cities. The shortages revealed in some sections of the United States, and for the period 1931 to 1940, inclusive, on the strict mathematical basis do not take into account further home shortage created by destruction, such as fire and flood, and the normal rate of obsolescence.

The survey used 1930 as a base year because home builders throughout the nation class it as a "normal" building year.

The Man Who Guards Our Route to Iceland

ADMIRAL ERNEST J. KING
'Tough? Don't fool with nitroglycerin'

By ALEXANDER R. GEORGE
(AP Feature Service Writer)

Back in 1901 when handsome, very serious Ernie King of Lorain, Ohio, was graduated from the Naval Academy, his Lucky Bag recording was:

"Temper? Don't fool was nitroglycerin."

Now rated the toughest sea dog among the Navy's high ranking officers, 62-year-old Admiral Ernest J. King commands the United States forces which guard the Atlantic all the way to Iceland.

The tall, sinewy leather-faced King is no "apple polisher" for Navy brass hats. His assignment to the critical defense outpost caps a career of outstanding command performance, particularly in the aircraft and submarine services.

* * *

Qualifying as a naval aviator at the age of 48 and holding a succession of air commands, he is said to have done more in perfecting the tactical value of aircraft to the fleet than any other man in the navy. He has stressed the use of the navy's air force as a powerful offensive—rather than defensive—weapon of the fleet.

Prior to his aeronautical service, brilliant supervision of the salvage of the sunken submarines S-51 and S-4 won him the Distinguished Service Medal with Gold Star.

Old Eagle-Eye Ernie, as they call him in the navy, drives his men and himself at a hard pace. Many a junior officer has cussed him as an "unreasonable, hard-bitten, son of a sea cook." Most of them admit, however, he would be a handy man to have around if trouble were brewing. A high ranking officer, who has had considerable service with him says: "King's a pleasant gentleman ashore but a tough hombre at sea. Determined and a very quick thinker in an emergency, he has what it takes to command a fleet in wartime."

* * *

As commander of the patrol force (the Atlantic fleet) he directs the operations of 180 warships. The exact makeup of the Atlantic is now a strictly confidential matter. Some time ago it comprised three old battleships, a few cruisers, many destroyers and speedboats and some long-range bombing planes together with other aircraft.

Admiral King saw service in eastern Atlantic waters during the World War when he was assistant chief of staff for Admiral Henry T. Mayo, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet. For that service he was awarded the coveted Navy Cross.

Six feet 2 inches tall, fairly broad-shouldered and slim waisted, King is an imposing figure in full naval dress and a breast load of decorations. He is the father of six girls and one boy. Dancing with one of his daughters, he appears as sprightly as a young ensign. He likes golf but is fussy about the most minor rules of the game.

PLATTEKILL

Plattekill, July 14—The regular meeting of the Willing Workers Society of the Plattekill Methodist Church was held Friday evening in the lecture room of the church.

The annual picnic and outdoor frolic, for members of the Plattekill Grange and their families was held on the Grange grounds Saturday evening. A meeting was conducted in the hall at the conclusion of the festivities.

Mrs. Herman Cook entertained the members of the Busy Bee Society of the Rossville Methodist Church, Wednesday afternoon, when plans were made for the annual church fair and supper to be held for the benefit of the church in August. Attending the meeting were the Rev. and Mrs. Leo Benjamin, Mrs. Charles Morris, Mrs. Rachael Griggs, Mrs. Bradley, Mrs. Emil Hoetzler, Mrs. William Howard, Mrs. Chester Howard, Mrs. Harry Coleman, Mrs. Alonzo Benedict, Sr., Mrs. Samuel Dransfield, Mrs. Clifford Roe, Mrs. Alonzo Benedict, Jr., Mrs. Helen Fowler, Mrs. George Marsh, Mrs. Elvin Pressler, Mrs. George Decker, Mrs. Donald Weaver, Shirley Weaver, Norma Benedict and Joan Cook.

Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Van Duzer have returned from a vacation visit with Mr. and Mrs. Oliver Sullivan in Mineola, L. I.

Mrs. Elsie Foster, Burtin Foster and son of Newburgh, were recent visitors of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Dransfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hartney and daughter, Joan of Modena, were entertained at cards at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Van Duzer, recently.

Miss Joan Jamison of North Plank road, visited her cousin, Shirley Weaver, recently.

Robert Gerow of Newburgh, visited his cousin, Mrs. M. Augusta Johnston last week.

Mrs. Charles Wright and daughter, Miss Myra Wright, of Irelands Corners, visited Mrs. Martha Whitmore, Sunday.

Frank Gerow has returned from a visit in Newburgh with relatives.

Employes of the commissioner of highways of the town of Plattekill have completed the cutting of weeds and grass, at the sides of the roads in the cross-roads throughout the town of Plattekill.

Mr. and Mrs. George Merritt of New Paltz were supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Ronk, at Poma Ridge Farm, Sunday.

A number of local people attended the school meeting of the Centralized District Schools at Wallkill, Tuesday evening. George Sisti gave a report on existing conditions and expenses incurred in the excavation of the foundation of the new school, and the digging of the well on the school grounds.

Fruitful Search

Greensboro, N. C.—Assigned to do a little digging in a watermelon patch, sheriff's deputies thought they'd have an enjoyable time.

At least the patch was fruitful. For the officers found 52 one-gallon jugs of illicit whisky—each under a separate vine.

Return Bout

Jefferson City — Intermittently throughout the Missouri legislature's longest session—it started in January—committees have heard evidence on the first district state senate election contest.

Republican Clark A. McColl and Democrat Charles O. Roberson each claimed the seat but neither occupied it. Yesterday both resigned so weary senators could go home 22 hours later than the time set for sine die adjournment.

Both are expected to run for the post again in 1942.

Outlook Changed

Lynxville, Wis.—The 100 hens belonging to W. L. Tallmadge strut in their henhouse with spectacles fastened before their eyes by means of a tiny aluminum bar.

Tallmadge says the red celluloid lenses have corrected a cannibalistic trait characteristic of even the most aristocratic of hens.

Spots of blood of a hen make other hens "see red," he explains. They attack the injured bird en masse. The rosy lenses, making all objects appear red, have eliminated this cannibalism, Tallmadge claims.

Playing Possum

Los Angeles — George Hanson made a bed in the parlor for the family cat—at least he thought it was for the family cat. Then he retired.

The smoke of slower-burning Camels contains

28% LESS NICOTINE

than the average of the 4 other largest-selling brands tested—less than any of them—according to independent scientific tests of the smoke itself

The name is Dorothy Van Nuys. The place—California's popular Santa Barbara. The cigarette—America's favorite—C-A-M-E-L!

SHE SWIMS...she rides...she's typically modern in her zest for the active life. Typically modern, too, in wanting to know the scientific facts about the cigarette she smokes. In choosing Camels, Dorothy Van Nuys enjoys the scientific assurance of a slower-burning cigarette. That means more coolness, freedom from the harsh, irritating qualities of excess heat...extra mildness. And she knows, from independent laboratory reports, that in the smoke of extra-mild Camels, there is less nicotine. {See above, right.}

R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Company, Winston-Salem, North Carolina

"I NEVER REALIZED, until I changed to Camels, that a cigarette could be so much milder and yet have all that wonderful flavor," adds Miss Van Nuys from the pool's edge (above). Yes, no matter how much you smoke, Camels always hit the spot—and they're extra mild with less nicotine in the smoke.

CAMEL

THE CIGARETTE OF COSTLIER TOBACCOS

YES, DOROTHY VAN NUYS, and the important point is: Camel's extra coolness—and other Camel advantages are in the smoke. After all, it's the smoke you smoke. And in the smoke of the slower-burning cigarette of costlier tobaccos there's more coolness, more flavor, extra mildness—with less nicotine.

The smoke's the thing! Smoke out the facts about milder smoking pleasure yourself. Dealers feature Camels by the carton. For economy—convenience—get your Camels by the carton.

Commends Communities For Free Entertainment

Civilian communities and agencies affording soldiers an opportunity to visit points of interest without charge or at reduced rates were commended today by Brigadier General James A. Ulio, Chief of the Morale Branch, War Department, Washington, D. C.

"Soldiers on pass or furlough are always looking for something to do, places to go and things to see," he explained. "Many times a man can't avail himself of the educational and recreational opportunities of a community because he doesn't have the money."

Some towns have realized this and have taken steps whereby men in uniform are admitted free to points of interest, or at reduced prices, the Chief of the Morale Branch said. These communities, he declared, are contributing more to the welfare and enjoyment of soldiers than they realize, and their action is to be commended.

General Ulio cited as an example the steps taken by towns where recreational areas have been established. There educational, recreational and other opportunities which are not free have been reduced to a price which the soldier can pay.

This also is true in many other towns and cities throughout the United States, the Chief of the Morale Branch said. Many professional baseball clubs are either letting men in uniform attend their games free or at reduced prices. Other enterprises, in a number of instances, have adopted the same practice.

One gasoline dealer in a southern state announced recently that he would sell gasoline and oil at cost to soldiers in uniform so that money they have to spend for traveling might go as far as possible.

The Pacific Coat Conference recently adopted a seven-point program for the benefit of the soldier which is praiseworthy, General Ulio said. At conference football games this fall, uniformed service men will be admitted to special section at established high school rates. Conference members will schedule athletic contests with service teams wherever possible, and an exception will be made to the circuit's rule prohibiting the public showing of football moving pictures so they can be used for entertainment of soldiers and sailors.

Insofar as possible the various institutions' athletic facilities will be made available for use by service men's organizations, and staff members of the various universities and colleges will assist military officials in their athletic programs where such help is desired.

"It should always be borne in mind," General Ulio said, "that the Army of the United States is the people's own army, and are the Army's own people."

HEARTBREAK HONEYMOON

by WATKINS E. WRIGHT

YESTERDAY: Apparently, Luella Pell thinks, the New York venture of the Henry Pells is just not working out. For Henry is, she fears, neglecting his good real estate job in an attempt to get into radio, and she is sure he is neglecting her for Marie Mason, the radio singer from their home town who has taken such an interest in Henry's career. But Luella does not know what she can do, and does nothing.

Chapter 16

Tip From The Boss

MARIE MASON had been right when she said she felt that there were going to be some definite developments before long regarding the radio program. Maybe it was woman's intuition, and maybe it was just "plain old garden-variety hunch," as Henry had expressed it; but whatever it was, Rector got in touch with Marie the next week.

"We're going to have a very important conference," Rector said. "We're planning to get things in shape for a sort of dress rehearsal."

"Oh, that's marvelous!" Marie exclaimed. "I'm delighted Malcolm."

"We'll want to use some of Pell's songs, a comedy sketch of Alma Latham's, and perhaps some other material," Rector continued. "Anyway, I'd like for you to get in touch with Pell, and tell him we're to gather at my office tomorrow evening."

"Of course!" said Marie. "I'll telephone him at once. But when is the rehearsal?"

"We'll discuss that at the conference."

"And how about an audience, Malcolm? After all, we ought to get the reaction of someone besides ourselves."

"Yes, I know," Rector said. "We'll handle all that later. Don't worry."

And Marie hadn't worried. Nor had she lost any time in getting in touch with Henry. She got him at his office, while he was having a visit from the manager of the realty concern.

"And I think, Henry dear," she said, when she had explained about the conference and the rehearsal, "that we should do some rehearsing ourselves. I mean, the songs. We want to be perfect if we have to do them before an audience."

"Fine!" Henry said. "Thanks a lot for calling me about it all, Marie. . . ."

"Why not come up to my place this evening? Marie suggested. "The sooner we get started, the better."

"Right. I'll be there Eight-thirty all right with you?"

"Splendid. I'll be looking for you."

Henry hung up the receiver, and turned to see the manager's gaze upon him. It was a gaze that made him feel uncomfortable.

"Sorry we were interrupted, Mr. Smithers," he said. "But it was about a little side-line I'm interested in."

"Yes, I know," said Mr. Smithers. "I understand that you're becoming—er—more or less involved with—"

"I beg your pardon," Henry cut in, on the defensive.

"—with radio songs, or something of the sort." Mr. Smithers finished.

"Yes, sir, that's right," Henry said, smiling. "I wrote some verses down home, and they may be sung over the air."

"I see." Mr. Smithers turned to go. "We like our employees to have hobbies, Pell," he said as he reached the office door and turned, but we prefer them to work at them after hours. You can understand that, I'm sure."

"Yes, sir," said Henry, feeling like a small boy, and hating himself for feeling that way. "But my songs hardly come under the heading of hobbies. I hope to make some money out of them, and—"

"Very commendable, I'm sure," Mr. Smithers said coldly. "But the money we are paying you is for your time while in your office. Please keep that in mind. And don't forget about that property in Chicago. We may have to send out someone to handle it for us."

"Very well," said Henry, this time leaving off the "Sir."

He frowned at the door which closed behind Mr. Smithers' stiff and dignified back. "Old crab!" he said under his breath. But he went to work with a sort of grim determination—as though he wanted to show the Old Crab that Henry Pell could earn what he was being paid, and still make something on the side.

Disappointment

HE WENT up to Marie's apartment, as she had suggested. It was but a sort of prologue to many other trips there—for Marie insisted they must rehearse alone until they were letter perfect. They did, and they were! And now everything was all set.

Once more Henry Pell was on his way home from the realty office, and he was trying not to feel too elated. He had some news to break to Luella, and he wanted to do it calmly. He didn't want a scene. There had been far too many of them of late; and they got a fellow down. Luella, desperately silent, depressingly on the verge of tears, hurt, forlorn. It was awful. It did no one any good, and everyone a lot of harm. Well, after tonight—

He hurried up the two flights of stairs. He opened the door of the apartment and went in.

"Luella?" he called. "Are you home?"

"Yes." Luella replied from the kitchenette, remembering with a little ache in her heart how Henry used to barge in, calling out, "Hi, there, where's my Woman?" Evidently she wasn't his woman any longer. Maybe he thought her a millstone about his neck, or something like that, "I'm mixing your favorite salad, darling," she added.

"Thanks," Henry said. "But I've got to eat in a hurry. I haven't much time."

"Are you going to work again tonight?" Luella asked. She came into the living-room, wearing an apron, and stirring the contents of a salad bowl with a large wooden spoon. "I was hoping we could do something together tonight. It's been days since we—"

"I've got to get into my evening things," Henry interrupted. "We are going—"

"Your evening things!"

"Yes. And for heaven's sake, Luella, don't look so horrified! I'm not going out philandering, if that's what you're thinking about."

"Well, what are you going to do?"

"We're having a rehearsal of the radio program tonight," Henry said. "It's being given before an invited audience in one of the radio broadcasting studios, just as though it was actually on the air, only—"

"Isn't it terribly sudden — the idea of a rehearsal?"

"In a way, yes," said Henry. "Although we've been planning for it for several days. That's why I've had to work so hard—on the songs, I mean. But today Rector telephoned and said there were some big shots here from Hollywood—men who know radio values, so far as the entertainment angle is concerned, and so he wants to put on a show for them tonight."

"But why the formal attire?"

"We want to be impressive"—Henry grinned—"elegant, you know, and all that."

"I see. Then that means I'll have to wear my most formal gown."

"No, Luella. I—I—that is, you're not going."

"Oh!"

"I'm sorry, but—"

"I thought you said there was to be an invited audience."

"I did." Henry took a deep breath. "The rehearsal is being put on before about fifty people, but only those interested in entertainment values. Some Broadway producers, the men from Hollywood, and some men who are interested in a business way. We want to get the reaction of people like that. Understand?"

Luella nodded. "Yes," she said. Just that and nothing more.

Henry saw her stricken look and felt a pang of sympathy mingled with one of annoyance.

"Don't stand there looking like a hurt child, honey," he said. "Wait until the program actually goes on the air, and then I'll take you to a broadcast."

Luella Has A Plan

"THAT'LL be terribly sweet of you, I'm sure," said Luella. "And don't forget to buy me a lollipop."

"What do you mean by that?"

"Treat a child as a child—that's what I mean," said Luella. "I have ceased to be a woman in your opinion." She turned and went back to the kitchenette.

But she had lost interest in preparing Henry's favorite salad.

In fact she had lost interest in just about everything. She was low. She was resentful. She was angry. Henry was going to a rehearsal, and he was getting into his formal clothes. That probably meant that Marie would be all dolled up like Mrs. Astor's horse. It probably meant that there was going to be a gay evening for Henry—if not for his wife.

It was right at that moment that a voice spoke to Luella; a voice that might have come from another Luella.

It said: "Listen, you, why don't you give that husband something to think about?"

"What?" asked Luella. "What, for instance?"

"Tommy McIntyre, and the Planetarium," said the voice, with emphasis.

"Oh, but I couldn't do that. . . . I—"

"Nonsense! . . . Maybe if that husband of yours knew that Tommy McIntyre had poured out his love for you while the two of you stood beneath a lot of make-believe stars and planets and things, he would stop thinking about himself all the time."

"Maybe so, but I—I—"

"Listen, Luella Brown Pell, are you in love with Tommy—or on the verge of falling?"

"Of course not! . . . The very idea!"

"Then stop stalling. If your conscience is clear, that's all that matters. You should march right in there and tell that husband of yours all about it—tell him anything. It'll do him good—the self-centered, radio-songwriting Son of a Gun!"

Leulla stared at the salad bowl. She picked up the big wooden spoon and began to use is savagely, not gently as the recipe had said. Yes, Tommy—a lot of stars in a manufactured heaven — and talk of love.

"I've felt myself being drawn to you ever since that first night," Tommy had said. "I thought at first it was because you were understanding, and because it was comforting to have someone to talk to about Marie. But now I no longer want to talk about Marie. I want to talk about us, Luella."

Heaven alone knew what else Tommy would have said if the lecturer hadn't begun explaining a lot of planets.

Murals Ire Jurists

Justices of the Supreme Court in Mexico City denounce as blots on the characteristics of Mexican justice the murals painted by Jose Orozco in the new courts building. They are demanding their removal, but Chief Justice Urbina recommends that some meaning be ascribed to them before they are sentenced to expulsion. All of the murals portray justice as an avenger, a god or goddess of terrorism.

Storm a Merry-Go-Round Traveling on Flat Car

A storm is not just a peaceful little flock of clouds traveling along side by side like sheep, it was explained recently by David Greenfield of the United States weather bureau staff in Los Angeles.

Rather, a storm is more aptly compared with a merry-go-round . . . a merry-go-round traveling along on a flatcar, if you will . . . with the whirling horses represented by the clouds spinning in toward the storm center in a counter-clockwise direction.

"The average rainstorm probably moves along at somewhere between 20 and 60 miles an hour," said Greenfield, "but the winds moving toward the center of those storms can have any velocity up to a hundred miles an hour or higher.

"Speaking generally, the fundamental types of cloud are the cirrus, the stratus and the cumulus, although we usually have many variations of them during a rainy spell.

"Cirrus clouds are the thin, feathery formations at three miles elevation and higher. Their speed can be anywhere from zero up to 100 miles an hour or so, depending upon whether they are in an air mass that's moving. Roughly speaking, cirrus clouds usually precede a storm by a day or so.

Discover New Uses for Bananas; Strange Dishes

In Jamaica where they grow bananas they have a way of using them that might be fun for us to try. It may mean a cultivated taste, but at least there are possibilities for a new note in your meal planning by using the recipes.

Boiled Bananas.

6 unripe bananas
1 cup milk
1 tablespoon butter
2 tablespoons flour
¾ teaspoon salt
Dash of pepper

Peel bananas and cut in halves. Add milk, bring to a boil, cover and let simmer 25 minutes. Melt butter, add flour and mix to a paste. Gradually add liquid in which bananas were cooked and stir over low heat until smooth and thickened. Cook two or three minutes longer and pour over bananas. Serve as a vegetable.

Bathtub Hanger

There's a bathtub hanger that makes your bathtub an integral and leak-proof unit with the building.

This hanger is built into the wall behind the wall finish. Perforations in the hanger and base strip act as a key to build the hanger and tub securely into the wall. A leak-proof filler is then used in the groove of the hanger, and this acts as a permanent water seal against water seepage or leakage.

This leak-proof hanger so tightly seals the connection between wall and tub that the danger of water seeping down behind the tub and rotting woodwork or spotting ceilings below the bath is entirely eliminated.

Bathtubs frequently settle with shrinkage of the building. This causes cracks around the edges and at the base of the tub that lead to serious leaks. By preventing settling, the new bathtub hanger provides assurance that cracks and leaks will not occur.

Really, a Swell Guy

Mt. Olive, N. C. (AP)—When an automobile struck Nathaniel Hobbs, the driver got out and took Hobbs to a hospital, suffering from a badly fractured hip. Hobbs said he just didn't think to ask the driver's name, but added: "He was mighty nice to me."

Savants Perfect Way For X-Raying Metals

A new technique for X-ray analysis of metals, alloys, welds, or small metal parts, which may be of great value to the armament industry as well as for peace time work, was discussed recently at the twenty-second annual convention of the American Society of Metals.

Early developments of this method are now used in airplane manufacturing. The improved technique was presented by Dr. G. L. Clark, University of Illinois chemistry professor, and Dr. W. M. Shaffer, Iowa State Teachers college chemistry professor.

It involves X-raying a thin specimen of the metal on plates having special, extremely fine grain photographic emulsions, and then enlarging this negative 100 to 200 times. The original photograph is about the size of the end of a lead pencil.

The enlargement shows elements in the metal, whether they are spread evenly or bunched, and any flaws or cracks which are in the metal. These flaws may be originally present or result from working the metal. Flaws in welds are instantly noticeable. Entire small metal parts may be X-rayed.

The X-ray gives the metallurgist a three-dimensional view, enabling him actually to look into the specimen. Other methods of microscopic study show him only the surface, and involve troublesome techniques of etching or polishing.

Perennial Youth

If Ponce de Leon was living today, he wouldn't go to St. Augustine in search of the Fountain of Youth. He would probably wait for developments of the experiments being conducted by Prof. Roy G. Hoskins of Harvard college, in his search for a chemical fountain of perennial youth. Experimenting with aged and matured male rats, Professor Hoskins has produced noteworthy increase in their activity through the use of a new synthetic hormone, "diethyl stibestrol." No attempt will be made to test the effects of the hormone in men until the experimental work in animals is quite decisive, Dr. Hoskins has declared. Rats are among the first animals that scientists employ for exploring a physiological problem of interest from the viewpoint of man's own health and vigor.

Crime Increases in 1940

Chicago was first among the large cities of the nation in the number of robberies and burglaries in 1940, according to statistics released recently by the Federal Bureau of Investigation. Los Angeles trailed Chicago in both these crimes. Chicago reported 5,803 robberies in 1940, Los Angeles, 2,169; Detroit, 1,887; and New York, 1,497. Burglaries reported showed Chicago led with 10,939; Los Angeles, 10,022; and New York, 8,240. New York, with 275 murders led the country with Chicago second with 231 and Philadelphia third with 110.

Town of Esopus U. S. O. Canvass To Start Friday

An "every-house" canvass will be staged, covering every hamlet in the town of Esopus, during the period of July 18 to 26, to raise the necessary quota of $675, which is the town's obligation to the United Service Organization for national defense.

Some time during this period, a canvasser will call at each and every home, and all are urged to give as generously as possible so that this National Organization will better recreational and social conditions for the men in all our branches of the service.

The various chairman of each section of the township of Esopus, who will appoint their own canvassers, are as follows: Rifton, Mrs. Paul Bailey; St. Remy and New Salem, Mrs. Kenneth Krum; South Rondout, Mrs. Thomas Morrisey; Sleightsburgh, Miss Hester E. Marsh; Union Center, Mrs. C. House Schmoonmaker; Ulster Park, Mrs. H. M. Cameron; Esopus, Miss Winifred House; West Park, Mrs. Herbert Gindrat, and Port Ewen, Miss Mary Polhemus.

The men in the service have and are making a great many sacrifices to defend the nation for all that it stands for and those at home are asked to do their bit in making a contribution to the United Service Organizations for national defense.

Garrison Family Reunion Held Yesterday at Park

A birthday party for William E. Garrison, 80, of Arkville, and the annual Garrison family reunion took place Sunday afternoon at Forsyth Park. Fifty-four members of the family and friends attended the celebration.

William E. Garrison is a descendant of Isaac Garrison, a Netherlander, who founded and settled at Garrison's Landing, opposite West Point, in 1689.

For 252 years the majority of the Garrison family has been born and reared in the Hudson Valley and within 100 miles of the first home at Garrison.

About 2 o'clock the family and friends enjoyed a basket lunch in the pavilion at the park. During the remainder of the afternoon softball and other forms of recreation took place. About 5 o'clock the party dispersed and the entire assemblage expressed their hopes that William Garrison would enjoy many more years of happy life.

At yesterday's celebration the family decided to hold the reunion every year in this city. Morgan Garrison of Margaretville and Frank L. Garrison of this city were appointed to serve on a committee making arrangements for the event.

Those who attended the party and reunion Sunday afternoon were: William E. Garrison of Arkville, Mrs. Frank Burger, this city; Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Garrison of Margaretville; Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Sprague and daughter, Jean, of Liberty; Mr. and Mrs. Frank Leslie Garrison and daughter, Miss Norma Garrison, this city; Mr. and Mrs. Robert T. Garrison of Princeton, N. J.; Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Garrison and George Garrison of Poughkeepsie; Mr. and Mrs. Harold Garrison and children, Harold, Natalie, Betty and Esther, and Mrs. Reginald Todd of Arkville; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Doyle and children, Angus, Robert, Jr., and Matthew, of Port Ewen.

Also Mr. and Mrs. Otto H. Lavsa and children, Wilma, Carl and Patricia, of Port Ewen; Mr. and Mrs. John Garrison and children, Phyllis and Richard, of this city; Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Smith of Hurley; Phyllis Smith of Hurley; Joyce Decker of Middletown; Irwin Thomas of this city; Mr. and Mrs. Charles Keator and daughter, Betty, of this city; Mr. and Mrs. William German of Port Ewen; Mr. and Mrs. Clark M. Richards of Mt. Rainier, Md., and children, Eugene and William; Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Kelley of Port Ewen; Betty Walker of Port Ewen and Peggy Schlecht of Port Ewen.

The ceremony was performed at 2 o'clock by the Rev. Joseph E. Rivoli, pastor of the church. Organist was Miss Hilda Galietta and soloist was Charles Riccardi. The church was decorated with peach gladioli.

The bride wore a white satin gown trimmed with lace and a veil trimmed with lace attached to a crown of pearls. She carried white lilies. Miss June Provenzano of Glasco was the maid-of-honor and wore a gown of peach. The bridesmaids were the Misses Lena Sisco, Theresa Bruno, Angeline Pagliaro and Marie Morello. They wore gowns of powder blue trimmed with peach. They carried gladioli.

The groom was attended by Thomas Provenzano of Glasco. The ushers were Joseph Greco, Michael Provenzano and Ralph Sisco.

A reception was held at the home of the groom's parents. After a wedding trip to Philadelphia, Pa., they will reside in Glasco.

Four for Dinner

Meat Ring Buttered Kale
Bread Apricot Conserve
Avocado Salad Relish Dressing
Frozen Fruit Dessert Coffee

Meat Ring

1½ cups flour
2 teaspoons baking powder
¼ teaspoon salt
4 tablespoons fat
½ cup milk

Mix flour with baking powder and salt. Cut in fat, add milk. When soft dough forms, pat it out until ¼-inch thick. Spread with meat mixture. Roll up, pinch edges to hold in filling, and place in greased ring pan. Bake 24 minutes in moderate oven (350). After the ring has baked 15 minutes, draw it to the edge of oven and spread or brush lightly with an egg yolk mixed with 3 tablespoons milk, to glaze. Then finish baking.

Meat Mixture

2 cups chopped coked meat or chicken
2 tablespoons chopped green peppers
2 tablespoons chopped celery
1 teaspoon minced onions
1 teaspoon minced parsley
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons cream

Mix ingredients.

Frozen Fruit Dessert

8 slices sponge cake
2 cups berries
1 cup cubed canned pineapple or cherries
2/3 cup sugar
⅛ teaspoon salt
1 tablespoon granulated gelatin
3 tablespoons pineapple juice (or water)

Line a refrigerator tray with sponge cake. Mix berries with pineapple, sugar and salt. After 10 minutes, mix in gelatin soaked 5 minutes in cold water and then dissolve over boiling water. Cool fruit mixture and let stiffen a little. Pour into sponge cake lined tray, cover with more cake slices and freeze 3 hours, until stiff. Unmold and serve plain or covered with whipped cream. Garnish with firm, whole berries.

New Booklet Condenses "Life Begins At Forty"

Giving Time the Old "One-Two"

Are you letting the years lick you or do you still hit back like a champ?

You can keep hitting hard long past your youth, Walter B. Pitkin says in his famous "Life Begins at Forty."

Use it for all it's worth! How? Pitkin's program is to abandon "the little desires in favor of the great . . . concentrate on a few powerful enduring wishes . . . . Though energies may dwindle somewhat we use them more efficiently . . . . heighten our chances of success."

It's been shown that the average age at which the great have done their best work is 47.4 years, so you young people of 40 have your best time ahead of you! Know how to profit by that 2500 hours left over every year from the time you spend on the necessities of living.

Our 32-page booklet gives in convenient, condensed form the famous "Life Begins at Forty" by Walter Pitkin (condensation by permission of Whittlesey House). Learn how to make your middle and last years the happiest and most profitable of your life.

Sent 10¢ in coin for your copy of LIFE BEGINS AT FORTY to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Service, 635 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Good Taste Today

By Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "The Personality of a House," "The Blue Book of Social Usage," etc.)

It's Polite to "Leave a Bit for Manners" in the Serving Dish

One of my letters brings back to mind a long-ago expression that I have not heard since I don't know when. A reader asks, "Is the saying 'Leave a bit for manners' recognized as good manners today? Should one leave some food on one's plate at the end of a meal? I was brought up abroad and was taught not to waste food and not to take more than I could eat; but a cousin of mine who was brought up in this country insists that here it is polite to leave a little on one's plate. If this is true, can you give me a reason why it is so?'

As I remember, this advice did not apply to the food on one's plate but in the dish. And I can't imagine to whom the politeness could have been shown since a hostess is certainly pleased to have her food eaten to the last mouthful. I can remember as a child being told by an old nurse that anything wasted on Earth would be wanted in Heaven. And one is taught therefore, not to help oneself to more than one can eat. There is politeness however, in "leaving a piece for manners" in the serving dish, for someone who might want a helping afterward.

Two Interesting Wedding Questions

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please answer two questions that confuse my wedding plans? They are: (1) Are the groom's attendants called groomsmen, the same as ushers? I notice you always speak of ushers and where I come from I always heard of ushers too. But here where I now live, I always hear of groomsmen at a wedding. (2) I am more or less duty bound to have two friends as maid and matron of honor and have only one other intimate friends whom I would like to ask to take part. She will be a bridesmaid. Since the usual way is to have two bridesmaids and one attendant of honor, will you please explain the order these three attendants of mine will take in the procession?

Answer: (1) As I understand it, groomsmen is the old-fashioned term for the modern word usher. In the South when I was very young I never heard anything but groomsman but since then I have never heard anything but usher. (2) Practically speaking, it is almost impossible to have both a maid and a matron of honor because the attendant of honor is the one who walks just ahead of the bride and her father, holds the bride's bouquet during the ceremony and lifts her veil (if the bride wears one that has a long front piece so that she can't life it back easily herself). She also straightens our her train. After the ceremony, she stands on the bride's right at the reception and if there is a sit-down table at the reception she sits at the left of the groom. How you can divide these honors between two persons would be a question that you yourself will have to solve. If you can do it then the only way to have them go up the aisle would be the bridemaid following the ushers and the two attendants of honor together, following her.

Test of Communism

It's natural to think of the Russo-German conflict in terms of its effect on the outcome of the European war as a whole. Thus it is easy to overlook the fact that we are witnessing a historic trial of the Communist form of government, and that in a country which in area is the largest in the world and has a population of over 170,000,000.

Communism as we know it in practice was born out of the World War, and now after a quarter century it is getting its first test of stamina in another major war. A news dispatch from Berlin records the jubilant claim by Dienst, a publication close to the German foreign office, that "the death knell of Bolshevism already has sounded."

Is there any truth in this boast? How much cohesion is there in this great new commonwealth of nations? Will the Bolshevists brand of morale stand the death and destruction and privations of this conflagration?

Those are legitimate queries, for the questions of civilian morale to my mind will have more to do with winning this war than will tanks and guns. That is equally true of all the belligerents.

F. S. A. Takes Steps To Help Farmers In Drouth Losses

The Federal Farm Security Administration, Department of Agriculture, took a firm stand today on the side of New York dairymen in their losing battle against drouth by adopting a four-point plan to aid immediately milk producers whose hay and grain crops are cut to critical levels.

Drastic action necessary, said J. H. Wood, F.S.A. regional director for northeastern states, to prevent distress among farmer families and avert sharp reduction in milk supply at time when even more milk and milk products called for in government's defense and aid Britain program.

F.S.A. plan: (1) Assist cooperative farmer groups secure the several hundred thousand tons of hay needed to carry through the fall and winter; (2) assist present F.S.A. families with emergency loans for replacing feed scorched out of existence; (3) expand normal program to take care of families who've become eligible for F.S.A. assistance account of drouth; (4) make emergency short-term loans to those higher-income farmers who may be unable to obtain credit elsewhere.

Wood said representatives of various agriculture agencies in seven upstate counties—St. Lawrence, Lewis, Jefferson, Owego, Franklin, Clinton, Essex—estimated 15 to 20 per cent dairymen there be able to take care of themselves; 35 to 40 per cent would need temporary credit to buy required feed, 40 to 50 per cent were in dire straits and would sell cows unless something was done.

Survey of milk-producing areas by F.S.A. and other agencies cooperating in aiding the situation, he added, showed in some counties the drouth to be the worst in history—and becoming progressively worse. Hay crops were found as low as 20 to 30 per cent of normal in some sections, oats about 30 per cent, corn about 40 per cent, pastures so retarded they are of little future value.

Because of this condition, and the prospect of feedless months ahead, it is found many farmers already are starting to reduce herds, selling many for beef and thus reducing milk supply. One farmer spokesman in Jefferson county said producers would have to dispose of two-thirds their cows unless they were assured of feed this fall and winter.

Surveys indicated that in Jefferson, Washington, Warren, Delaware and Otsego counties alone there would be a shortage of approximately 270,000 tons of hay and similar but as yet unestimated shortages in other counties in the milkshed.

Ulster county reports indicate about 60 to 75 per cent hay crop and serious shortage of pasture causing high feed costs. Persons seeking information with regard to the farm security program in Ulster county are asked to consult Fred J. Kirchner, Jr., R.R. supervisor, 25 East O'Reilly street, Kingston.

Two Cars Crash At Same Location Within Half Hour

Two cars met disaster early Sunday morning within a few feet of the same place and within a half hours time. The scene was the West Hurley-Woodstock road near the Hasbrouck property not far from the Woodstock golf course. Occupants of both cars reported no serious injuries.

About 4 o'clock the car of James Vosburgh of Washington, D. C., and driven by his son, James Vosburg, Jr., made the turn by the Hasbrouck place but failed to straighten out on the straightway. It left the road and crashed in the bank on the east of the road and then overturned. Like the second car it had been traveling toward Woodstock. Deputy Sheriffs Reynolds and Vredenburg who investigated reported none of the occupants seriously injured. In the car with Vosburgh was Robert Johnston, 26, of Alexandria, Va. Kenneth Charlton, 20, of Kingston Route 2, was the operator of the second car and with him were Warren Charlton, Frank Ritz, Robert Geary and Mary Weigenelt.

Charlton told the deputy sheriffs that he fell asleep at the wheel of the car and that it had left the roadway and crashed into a clump of trees along the road. The occupants of the car were shaken up but reported no other injuries. The car operated by Charlton was owned by his uncle, Henry Charlton.

Three Are Hurt As Three Autos Get in Mix-up

Three people were slightly injured in a three car crash Saturday afternoon about 3:30 o'clock on the Kingston-Stone Ridge road near the Blue Churn Inn about two miles from Stone Ridge.

Deputy Sheriff Herbert Segelken investigated and reported that a Ford sedan owned by I. B. West of Kerhonkson and operated by Ruth Green West had been proceeding toward Kingston followed by a Pontiac sedan of David F. Flynn of 620 West 8th street, Chester, Pa. A Terraplane sedan operated by Alfred Slater of Stone Ridge was proceeding toward Stone Ridge. The Pontiac attempted to pass the Ford and in the three-car tangle the Pontiac struck the Terraplane of Mr. Slater and then struck the West Ford. Mr. Flynn said his brakes had locked causing his car to be thrown around on the wet pavement, striking the Terraplane.

Mrs. Moses Green, mother of Mrs. West, who was riding in the Ford was injured about the head, arm and shoulder. Slater suffered abrasions about the left leg and Flynn complained about injuries to his ribs. None of the occupants required hospital attention.

Five Persons Hurt In Sunday Crash

Abraham Goldstein Held by Trooper Keefe

Five people were treated for slight injuries early Sunday morning at the Kingston Hospital following a two car crash on route 9-W near Glenerie and the operator of one of the machines was arrested by Sergeant J. J. Cunningham and Trooper Walter Keefe for reckless driving.

The car driven by Charles Vallo of Lester, Pa., and Abraham Goldstein of 13 Mangin street, New York, collided as the Vallo car was proceeding north and the Goldstein car southerly. Both cars were very badly damaged.

In the Vallo car was the operator and Thelma Vallo who were enroute to Saratoga. In the Goldstein car besides the driver were Dominic Mafrice and Sam Batus of New York city.

Goldstein was placed under arrest on reckless driving charge and taken before Justice of the Peace Percy Bush of the town under $35 bail and unable to put up the bail Goldstein was brought to jail but later he supplied the bail and was allowed to go.

Recreations Defeat Poughkeepsie and Endicott, 3-2, 9-0

Martin and Bush Twirl Victories; Elites Wednesday

Famous Negro National Loop Team Will Appear at Stadium; Large Crowd Expected

Joe Hoffman's Kingston Recreations tapered off for the last time Sunday before their important struggle with the famous Baltimore Elite Giants Wednesday night by defeating the Poughkeepsie Roe Movers and the Lindy Miles club of Endicott by scores of 3 to 2 and 9 to 0. Jimmy Martin and Bob Bush hurled the victories, Bush flinging the shutout.

Old and reliable Dutch Ruge started on the hill for Poughkeepsie in the afternoon contest and for six innings had the Recs in a daze. But in the seventh Kingston pushed over a marker when Celuch rammed a double into left and advanced to third on Thomas's bunt. Grace's hit into center registered Celuch.

Meanwhile, Lefty Martin, hurling his first game of the season, went along in fine style, matching the veteran Ruge. In the last half of the seventh the Roe Movers tied it up when Charlie Brennan's hit scored Seitz. Doubles by Abe Masci and Andy Celuch (his second), and a single by Francello, gave the Recs two in the eighth. Martin weakened in the ninth but pulled through and chalked up his first victory in blazing style.

Bob Bush took the hill for the Recs in this arclight feature and carved himself a five-hitter, the first game in which the rotund hurler has looked like himself this season. His mates found the offerings of Kolodek for 10 hits and the victory. Maines, Celuch and Ostrom paced the attack with two hits apiece. Maines drove in three runs.

The Recs salted the game in the fourth with two runs. A two-base error in left by Bailey on Maines' hoist, and successive hits by Billy Ostrom and Eddie Sabo, gave the Recs a 3 to 0 edge. Two more came across in the fifth on singles by Ashdown, Maines and Ostrom.

Kingston went to town in the eighth inning and scored four unnecessary markers. M. Kolodek's boot on Sabo's bounder started it. Before the fireworks ended Kingston had punched out three hits by Celuch, Thomas and Maines, walks to Ashdown and Francello and a fielder's choice on Bush's grounder.

Press Box Jottings

Bush permitted but two runners to reach third, Musa in the fourth and Ray Turecek in the eighth. . .Bob fanned eight batsmen and had the Endicott club helpless with his assortment of pitches. . .Mac Tiano, disputing a strike called by Bill Schwab, was banned from the game in the sixth inning. The umpires had a bad night. There were plenty of boos when Bill Scully called Tommy Maines out at first in the seventh. . .After looking helpless against Jimmy Martin in the afternoon game, Billy Ostrom returned to the Kingston lineup in the night game and rapped out a couple of hits and made that initial sack a busy place.

Elite Giants Wednesday

The famed Baltimore Elite Giants are the next attraction for the Kingston Recreations. Baltimore comes into municipal stadium Wednesday night. At least 2,000 fans are expected to jam the uptown ball park for this encounter which starts at 9 o'clock.

Baltimore, featuring strong power hitters and a capable hurling staff, defeated the famous Bushwicks of New York earlier this season in two games by 14 to 2 and 2 to 1. Williams and Barnes hurled the Giants to victory.

Opposing the Elites on the hill for Kingston will be Charlie Neff, who is generally at his best under the arclights. Neff will have a big job in store for him Wednesday but the New Paltz flinger seldom loses his stuff when under pressure. Claude Grace will do the catching.

Newcomers Ready

Before Billy Ostrom and Eddie Sabo joined the Recs, the Baltimore Giants would have been easy favorites to batter the club around again this year. However, with these two stellar ball players making the infield a solid defense and a good hitting combination, some thought must be given to the locals' chances of getting some revenge on the Elites.

Fans who trek to the stadium Wednesday night will see a major league club in action. That's the opinion of baseball experts who have seen the Elites in action. One New York agent and now a sports writer said recently "These Elite Giants are great, make no mistake about that. I've seen them in action plenty of times this year, and during the other years. The only bar to their playing in the major leagues of today is their color. Any club which books the Elites are in for a good show and a steady ball club which won't pull any punches."

Other Good Attraction

That's about the best description anyone could give on this club which will appear here Wednesday night. The Recs, realizing the playing performances of this standout club, are looking for a packed house. So far the attendance at every home game has been a helpful go ahead sign to the club. As long as the fans keep attending these arclight games the club will book the best possible outfits.

Hurls Five Hitter

Freeman Photo

BOB BUSH

Bob Bush looked like his old self last night, pitching a five-hitter for the Kingston Recreations against the Lindy Miles Club of Endicott. Reminding the fans of the Bob Bush of 1940, the rotund moundsman fanned eight batsmen and permitted only two runners to reach third base. With Bush in winning form, the Recs have a formidable pitching staff. The other flingers are Charlies Neff, Jimmy "Lefty" Martin and Al Proia. Dom Kolodek, who opposed Bush last night, looked fast at the start, but the Recs clipped his offerings for 10 hits and banged out a 9 to 0 victory.

Davenport Defeats Cullum in Tourney At Wiltwyck Club

Winner Posts Victory in Finals Sunday by 1 Up; 36-Hole Medal Play Will Start Soon

The finals of the June tournament of the Wiltwyck Club took place Sunday afternoon and resulted in a one up victory for Maurice Davenport over Bob Cullum.

A close battle over the entire route was settled on the 18th green. The medal scores were Davenport 76 and Cullum turning in a 77. This match brought to a close one of the best tournaments ever held. Great interest and rivalry was exhibited from the start.

A 36 hole medal play tournament will begin at once, play taking place over the next 10 days. At the completition of the medal play tourney, the qualifying round for the 1941 club championship will be held.

Sunday morning a blind bogey tourney was conducted. The winner was Maurice Davenport followed by Ralph Gardiner, Phil Ramsey and George Schick.

The afternoon brought out a large tournout for the two-ball mixed foursome. Low gross award was taken by Mrs. C. E. Burnett and Bob Cullum. A tie for the low net resulted between the above pair and Mrs. Robert Cullum and Stanley Hankison. This type of a match has proven so popular that more are being arranged for the near future, together with a golf carnival.

Next Sunday Wiltwyck Club journeys to the Catskill C. C. course for an inter-club match. Catskill C. C. is expected to give Wiltwyck the stiffest opposition yet encountered. Forty players from Wiltwyck have signified their intentions of taking part in the match.

Clintons Advance In Softball Loop; Port Ewen Second

Only 2½ Games Separate First Four Churches; Ulster Park Wins Second Contest

The Clinton Avenue softball team has finally ousted Port Ewen from the leadership of the Men's Federation League. The Clintons have won 11 and dropped two for an average of .846. Port Ewen is second with 10 triumphs and three losses. Trinity Lutherans and Presbyterians make up the first four clubs with only a half-game separating the two clubs. St. James, with eight wins and five defeats, and the Baptists with seven victories and five setbacks, follow in fifth and sixth.

Results of last week's games:

Fair Street forfeited to Congregationals, and First Dutch forfeited to the Lutherans; the Baptists defeated St. James, 5-4 and Presbyterians 4 to 2 in eight innings. Clinton Avenue moved into first by defeating Port Ewen 2 to 1. Port Ewen defeated Hurley by 6 to 3. Clinton Avenue also turned back St. James 8 to 6. Lowly Ulster Park closed in on Hurley by shellacking the Redeemers 23 to 3.

This week's schedule of games:

Tonight

'Diz' Dean Hurls In Class D League

Sioux Falls, S. D., July 14 (AP)—Jerome (Dizzy) Dean made his first appearance in class D baseball last night—a surprise three-inning stretch for the Sioux Falls Canaries of the Western League.

The Canaries won 7 to 4 over the Pueblo Rollers before 3,000 fans. Dean allowed but one hit and struck out one, but committed two of four Sioux Falls errors and left the game with the count knotted 3 to 3. He went hitless in two times at bat.

The once great National League hurler left the Cubs July 6 for a radio announcing job in St. Louis.

It was not immediately learned whether he had signed up with the Western League club as a regular or was making a barnstorming tour preliminary to his radio appearance.

Davenport Wins Golf Tourney

DiMaggio's Streak Runs To 53; Yanks Have Lead of Five; Cleveland Wins Two

Dodgers Split With Cubs, Cards Win Two, Slice Former's Margin in National League

(By The Associated Press)

For the benefit of those folks who think baseball's second name is DiMaggio—and vice versa—this is as good a time as any to point out that pitchers really still are of some use in the game beside helping to keep up a club's intake average at mealtime.

Of course, none of 'em look any good when Jolting Joe is waving his war club at them these days. Ted Lyons and Lefty Thornton Lee of the Chicago White Sox are the latest to join Joe's personal "serve-it - up - and - duck" department. The big guy connected safely off each of them yesterday, as the sizzling Yankees swept a twin bill, to run his all-time record for hitting to 53 consecutive contests.

But, despite the fact that Joe's carefree attitude regarding pitchers has dragged the elbowing fraternity into low repute, the boys who deal 'em off the arm in the majors generally showed up the slugging specialists on Sunday's full schedule. It was by far the best day for twirlers the big leagues have seen this season.

In the 15 tilts on the big-league card, three tossers served shutouts, three more gave up only one run. Eleven of the twirling jobs were six-hitters or less, with Southpaw Ken Heintzelman of the Pirates and old Rufus the Red Ruffing, the Yankee key man who turned in his seventh straight win, pace-making the parade. Believe it or not, even Cleveland didn't need Bob Feller to win a pair; the Yanks clicked mostly because of their pitching and Elmer Riddle remained just that to National League batters.

This collection of curving didn't do much to change the baseball picture, unless you want to count the Washington Senators' climb out of the American League cellar by trouncing the St. Louis Browns twice.

Yankees Get 14th

After the firing ended, the Yanks, riding a 14-game winning streak, were five full games in front of the American League pack, while the Dodgers' National League lead was narrowed down to 2½ games over the St. Louis Cardinals, largely because of Claude Passeau.

Claude, who labors for the Chicago Cubs, threw a neat six-hitter at the Brooklyns in the opener of a twin bill, and, what with the backing of a 16-hit attack, took a 10-3 victory. In the afterpiece, young Newt Kimball, starting his first encounter of the year, clouted the Cubs with a six-hitter for a 3-1 victory.

This split enabled the Cards to pick up a full game by flailing the Phillies twice. Lon Warnecke's eight-hitter produced a 7-2 win in the opener, while Bill Crouch came up with a sparkling four-inning relief job to save an 8-5 decision in the second act.

It's a toss-up between Ruffing and Heintzelman for the best pitching performance of the day. Fufus the Red went to work in the nightcap for the Yanks, had a no-hitter going into the eighth inning and wound up with a 1-0 three-hit win in 11 innings for his tenth victory of the year. In the opener, Spud Chandler pitched five-hit ball to win his first victory of the campaign, 8-1.

Heintzelman discovered a new branch of his family in the New York Giants lineup. They were all his cousins as he hurled two-hit ball, allowed only one man to get as far as second and tossed the Pirates to a 4-0 picnic. Thsi boosted the Bucs' winning streak to seven straight, but it ended right there as Bill Terry's Terriers came back to take the nightcap, 8-2, behind Hal Schumacher's five-hit hurling. Just for the records, Frankie Frisch still had Arky Vaughan holding the bench down.

Indians Win Two

Also missing was Ted Williams, from the Boston Red Sox lineup. He hurt his ankle Saturday and his absence yesterday was about as unimportant as your right arm. With the fireman's bat out, the Red Sox run-making machinery had monkey wrenches in it and they lost to Cleveland, 2-1, in 11 innings after going down 9-6 in nine. Lefty Al Smith gave up 11 hits in the second game but won, although Mickey Harris allowed only eight and fanned 10 men.

Riddle Wins 10th

As usual, opposing batsmen couldn't solve the Riddle from Cincinnati and unbeaten Elmer posted his tenth straight win by blanking the Boston Braves with five hits for a 4-0 Red victory. Manny Salvo and Tom Earley combined on a nine-hitter to beat Paul Derringer, 6-5, in the second game.

Even old Jack Knitt, who sits down to table with the Philadelphia Athletics these days, was in the parade. Turning in his fourth win in his past five starts, he downed the Detroit Tigers, 5-4, with five hits, despite two homers by Pinky Higgins.

Washington walloped St. Louis, 6-3 and 6-5, as a quartet of Nat pitchers, allowed only 13 hits through the 18 innings.

Enters P. G. A. Final

Byron Nelson, defending P. G. A. champion, bites his tongue as he makes a shot at the eighth hole during his semi-final match with Gene Sarazen in the P. G. A. tournament at Denver. Nelson won the match, two and one, to enter the finals against Vic Ghezzi of Deal, N. J.

Four Arrested

Four arrests were made Saturday by the Ellenville police on public intoxication charges and the defendants were sentenced by Justice Herman Cohen to 30 days in jail. Armand Elisee, 40, of 563 Canal street, Holyoke, Mass., Charles Reiley, 39, of 640 Main street, Avoka, Pa., Walter J. Coar, 31, of 210 Spruce street, Scranton, Pa., and Eugene Loomis Inlaz, 40, of 16-17 Summerfield street, Brooklyn, were the names given by the defendants.

Takes Jail Term

James Dunn, 63, of New York, was given a $5 fine or five days in jail by Justice of the Peace P. A. Lyon of Milton when Dunn was arraigned by State Trooper William Martin on a public intoxication charge Saturday. He took the jail term.

Vic Ghezzi Beats Byron Nelson for P. G. A. Golf Title

Deal, N. J., Veteran Gets Victory on 30-Incher; Ghezzi Has Tried for Nine Years

Denver, July 14, (AP)—It was only a 30 inch putt and it wobbled into the cup like any duffer's effort, but to 6-foot Vic Ghezzi it was worth $500 and his first Professional Golfers Association title.

The handome Deal, N. J., veteran won the championship and the $1,100 top prize after nine years' trying in a 38-hole epic with defending Champion Byron Nelson of Toledo, Ohio, at Cherry Hills yesterday.

And the missed shot that cost Nelson the last chance at his second straight crown and the difference between first money and the $600 he won was a putt of the same 2½-foot length.

Toffel Hurls Three Games, J.Y.A. Wins

Locals Take Softball Play as Pitcher Shines

The J. Y. A. softball team, with Ben Toffel doing the brunt of the hurling, took the annual Albany softball tournament Sunday afternoon. Kingston defeated Albany, Poughkeepsie and Gloversville in straight games to take the title.

Toffel hurled the complete opener and pitched three-hit ball. Albany collected three off the Kingston Moundsman. Art Kaplan started the second game against Poughkeepsie but failed to last the first. In came Toffel and once again Kingston's No. 1 softball twirler came through. He not only pitched himself to glory but won his own game with a homer in the tenth inning to defeat Poughkeepsie by 4 to 3.

Kaplan made another appearance in the third game but gave way to the work horse Toffel in the fifth. Ben went on to check Gloversville as the locals won easily by 9 to 3. Kingston pushed across seven runs in the last two innings.

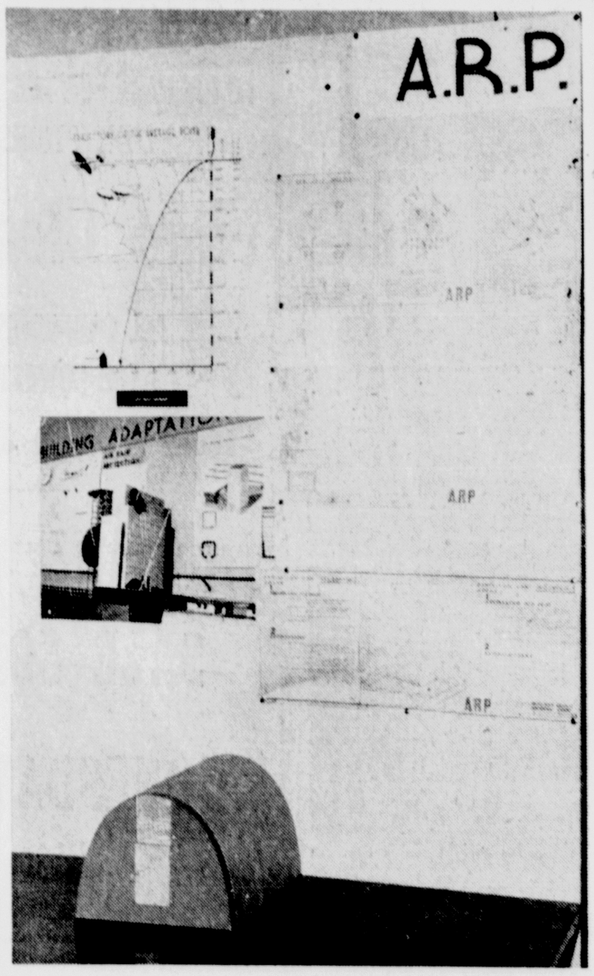
On the left is a small section at the exhibit giving detailed information on Air Raid Protection. On the table in front of the scale drawings and graphs is a small model of a shelter.



New Paltz Man Narrowly Misses Serious Injury

Harold Burrows of New Paltz had a narrow escape from injury Sunday when his car struck a telephone pole and cross arms which dangled above the road after another car had struck the pole earlier and broken it off. Although Burrows was not injured his car was badly damaged about the top.

The accident happened on route 144 between Selkirk and Cedar Hill, near Albany, when Anthony Scott of Coxsackie crashed into the pole breaking it off a few feet above the ground. He suffered internal injuries.

The crossarms and a part of the pole hung over the road and the car of Burrows came along, striking the debris before the car could be stopped. Trooper Mortak reported that later while the pole was being removed a car operated by Philip C. White of Selkirk which had stopped at the scene, was struck by a car operated by Robert Murray of Albany.

State Employment Service Must Also Comply With Laws

While the New York State Employment Service is not an enforcement agency for federal and state labor laws, it is required to observe these laws in filling job orders, according to Kenneth A. Simpson, manager of the Kingston office. It cannot refer workers to jobs which do not comply with existing labor laws.

Mr. Simpson, discussing this problem which faces the placement interviewers in the local office of this state agency, also brought up the matter of jobs which conform to state and federal laws, but which are below the normally accepted wage standards for a given occupation in this community. Which such job orders can be accepted by the office, the employer is informed that the wage scale or job conditions are below standard, and that it may prove difficult to obtain applicants who will accept those conditions of employment.

Regarding job orders recognized as being in violation of the law, Manager Simpson said that representatives of the service explain where the violation exists, and will advise employes, if so requested, how the specifications of the job order may be modified to comply with the law. Following such modification, or if, after diligent inquiry, there is any doubt as to whether or not a violation exists, Mr. Simpson said that the employer's statement of conformance with the law will be accepted.

In connection with so-called sub-standard jobs, Mr. Simpson calls attention to the fact that under the provisions of the New York State Unemployment Insurance Law, a claimant for benefits cannot be forced to accept employment unless the job offered approximates the standards of his previous occupation in wages and general working conditions. He emphasized that while sub-standard job orders are not refused by the service, it is extremely difficult to find workers who are willing to take these jobs.
